Ramblin' With Rip Friends

Have you heard it? That's what friends are for. Show me your friends and I will tell you who you are, (that is a quote from my 6th grade Franciscan nun teacher), why there has even been a TV show once associated with the name "Friends".

Little girls and little boys make friends at the drop of a hat. In just a few hours, they've got four or five new friends. I get a kick out of parents who have to move and are uncomfortable about it because their two and three year olds will lose their friends and in a matter of a couple days they will have a multitude of them.

We make friends that are life long, from grade school, high school, college or work. How really wonderful.

A couple of years ago my wife Marcia and I attended a Bob Milne piano concert at the Campanile in Minoqua WI. While shuffling through a program describing the affair, I ran across an old familiar name, David Valdhisan. Now how many David V's can there be in this world? Valdy was an old college friend who was on my missing persons list. I called him, and sure as heck, it was the real Valdy, along with his great Frau Dawn.

This renewal has since led to golf outings, re acquaintanceships with other mutual friends, Brewers and Reds baseball games in Phoenix and the list of things goes on. I know lots of people these days use electronic devices and schemes to renew friendships with people out of the past and that is great too.

Art in the Square this weekend in Crandon

One of the nicest events of the year will take place on the Court House Square on Saturday, September 17th in Crandon. Art in the Square is an event that appeals to many who like good food, arts, crafts and meeting up with friends. The temperature is usually a little cooler than the heat of high summer, the trees show a hint of the color display to come this autumn, and a relaxed and pleasant atmosphere can be felt.

This year, the Crandon Area Chamber, sponsor of the event, is holding a pie contest. Those kitchen wizards that can bring smiles with their pie recipes are encouraged to enter.

A scarecrow contest for Crandon businesses is an unusual twist this year. Those entering should contact the Chamber for a ball of straw, should they need it.

The kids will have fun painting pumpkins. The pumpkins are purchased, and there will be a painting area, where they can decorate their pumpkin in any way they desire. The pumpkin can come in handy later on for a pie or Halloween!

Shoppers can expect several new vendors this year.

As always, a wide variety of vendors will be on hand to show off and sell their works. There will be everything from furniture to painting and blown glass.

Don't miss it!

Memorial Service for Sept. 11, 2001

In memory of September 11th, 2001, a 10th Anniversary Memorial Service will be held at Praise Chapel, located at 200 East Sixth Street, in Crandon. The service will be held on September 11, 2011, at 6:30 p.m.

The American Legion and the Honor Guard and all other Veteran's organizations are invited to come and participate in this special service.

Grouse & Turkey Prospects

MADISON - Annual brood sightings of upland game birds is one measure the Wisconsin wildlife officials use both to monitor population trends and to give hunters another bit of information for decisions they'll make during fall hunting activities. Brood production surveys for pheasants, ruffed grouse, and wild turkey are conducted by Department of Natural Resources employees and the public during the months of June, July and August. Biologists stress, however, that these reports are preliminary and could change.

The Summer Wildlife Inquiry (SWI) questionnaire was sent to approximately 5,000 rural landowners throughout the state in mid August asking if they had any game birds on their property. Rural landowners in Wisconsin's primary turkey range were also sent report cards for reporting turkey broods seen during this time period.

DNR and federal field employees report the type and number of game bird young seen during their normal working duties during a 10-week period from mid-June through mid-August. In addition, the general public contributed information again this year, via the online Game Bird Brood Survey, which allowed them to report the type and size of game bird broods they may have seen during the same 10-week period.

"Brood rearing conditions have a great impact on nesting and rearing success," says Brian Dhuey, DNR wildlife surveys coordinator. "Weather during the early part of June is most critical for turkey, pheasant and grouse populations, as this is when recently hatched chicks are most susceptible to hypothermia if they get wet."

Weather in Wisconsin during the months of June, July and August was two to three degrees warmer than average, with precipitation near normal in the north and 3 to 4 inches below normal for the southern half of the state. Parts of northern Wisconsin had a large rainfall event on June 18 and 19, with some areas receiving 2 inches of rain. Temperatures were normal to above during this same period.

"It's possible that some brood losses occurred during this rain event," Dhuey said. "Spring phenology was delayed in much of the state prior to the brood rearing season and may have affected nesting and/or brooding efforts. The late spring may have also affected the availability of insects once broods hatched."

Ruffed Grouse

The number of rural landowners reporting ruffed grouse on their property was down 2 percent from last year and 31 percent below the long-term mean. DNR personnel reported a downturn in grouse production, with a 15 percent decline in the number of broods seen per hour from 2010 levels. The number of ruffed grouse broods seen per hour was down in both the central (-32 percent) and northern (-8 percent) regions, with only the southwestern region showing an increase (+25 percent). Brood size, as reported by DNR personnel, was up slightly with 4.2 young per brood reported in 2011, from 4.0 reported in 2010. The size of grouse broods observed by the public on the online Game Bird Brood Survey was 5.1, identical to that reported last year.

Grouse & Turkey Cont. from pg. 1

“This spring's grouse drumming survey showed an upturn of 38 percent in the number of breeding grouse in the state in 2011. Even though our brood count data are down somewhat, it appears that Wisconsin is still at or near the current grouse cycle high,” Dhuey said.

Turkey

The number of rural landowners reporting turkeys on their land was down 1 percent from 2010 levels, but still remained 29 percent above the long term mean. Rural landowners reporting turkey broods reported that 42 percent of the hens had a brood and that broods averaged 3.9 poults. In 2010 34 percent of the hens had broods and the average brood size was 4.1 poults. DNR field personnel reported that the number of turkey broods observed declined by 29 percent compared to 2010 levels. The average size of broods observed by DNR personnel was 4.5, the same as last year. Participants in the online Game Bird Brood Survey reported 4.7 young per brood, higher than the 3.9 observed last year. “Turkey brood production seems to have dropped off a bit from previous year's losses and is below the long term average.”

Ramblin' with Rip Cont. from pg. 1

When I grew up, so many friendships were of the front porch variety or friends in the block where you lived. Today in our more busy world and with the mobility we have, we really must work a bit to get and keep friendships.

Someone told me once we should call an old friend every day or two. That is a nice idea. I've tried once in awhile. As you read this, maybe that's a good idea. Try it today, you'll be better for it.

Good Day.

We are here for your emergency meds. And your everyday meds, too.

When you need a medication right away, a mail-order pharmacy can't help you. Driving to a distant chain store wastes precious time and money. That's when you really appreciate the care and convenience of a community pharmacy.

And when it's not an emergency, we can mail your everyday medications directly to your home or winter destination. In many cases we can match or beat the copays on generic drugs from mail-order pharmacies.

At Nicolet Pharmacy, you are cared for by long-standing members of your local community who have been helping you since 1996.

It's easy to transfer your prescriptions to Nicolet Pharmacy. Just give us a call and we'll handle all the details for you.
