Laona Fire Department's 4th of July Celebration

The Laona Volunteer Fire Department is holding their annual 4th of July Celebration on Saturday, July 6th, with the parade at noon.

Following the parade, head for Silver Lake Beach, where there will be plenty of food, children's games, raffles, drawing and time to spend with friends and family.

Fireworks are at dusk, with new fireworks added this year. The first display will be sponsored by Al Weso, proprietor of Fire-Up Smoke Shop, and the second display is sponsored by the Laona Fire Department.

Make sure to purchase tickets from the firemen or local businesses enabling you to win prizes, with the proceeds helping to pay for the fireworks.

Rain date is July 7th. Support the fire department, and they will be there when you need them!

Crandon Fire Dept. 4th of July Celebration

The Crandon Fire Department will be holding their annual 4th of July Celebration on Saturday, July 6th.

The Bed Races start at 11:00 a.m., followed by the big parade at noon. The auction follows the parade, and it is good advice to bring your own lawn chair!

Put on your dancing shoes for the live music that starts at 7:00 p.m. by BoxKar, who will keep you moving until midnight.

The famous fireworks are at dusk at Palmer Park. Bring the kids and have some fun, and in the process, you will support the Crandon Fire Department in their efforts to provide top-notch fire response.

Townsend Festival 4th of July celebration

Townsend started their 4th of July Festival last Saturday, but it continues on Thursday, July 4th and Saturday July 6th.

On the 4th, they are having an Arts & Crafts Fair from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. The Festival Parade is at noon, and the beer tent and live music begins at 10:00 a.m. and runs until 4:00 p.m., with live music. Children age 12 and under will have games starting at 5:00 p.m., and everyone wins a prize. The huge fireworks display is at dusk, or about 9:30 p.m.

On Saturday, July 6th, the Children's Fishing Tourney will be held at My Bar (Birch Hills Resort) with registration at 7:10 a.m.

The Festival is sponsored by the Townsend Festival, Inc., and they would like to remind everyone that there is food and beverage at all events, and carry-ins are not allowed.

Laona Library Lore Summer Reading Program

Come One! Come All! The Edith Evans Community Library is inviting every one to The 2013 Summer Reading Program, with the theme of "Digging For Reading Treasures", that will be held for three weeks beginning on Tuesday, July 16th, and ending on Tuesday, July 30th.

Each week's session will begin at 10:00 a.m., and will be approximately thirty to forty-five minutes in length. Stories will be read to the children in attendance, and an accompanying activity will be done.

All attendees are being asked to pre-register this year by calling 715-674-4751 on, or before, Thursday, July 11th.

The 2013 Summer Reading Program will then end on Tuesday, August 6th, when Randy Peterson will again be performing at 10:00 a.m.

Wisconsin's Johnny Greaves wins the Forest County Potawatomi Community Cup final at Crandon!

CRANDON, Wis. (July 1, 2013) – The final race of the Forest County Potawatomi Brush Run Races at Crandon International Off-Road Raceway, the one with the $20,000-plus cash-sponsor prize purse - the 20th annual Forest County Potawatomi Community Cup - went to Wisconsin local PRO 4x4 racer Johnny Greaves (Monster Energy/Toyota/Maxxis), who came from behind in the staggered start and caught PRO 2WD's Jeff Kincaid from Crandon and cruised the big dollar victory.

"I can't think of a better way to wrap up a thrilling weekend of racing at Crandon than to get the win in the Forest County Potawatomi Community Cup," said Greaves. "And to top that off by getting to do so in front of our hometown fans, and to be joined by my son CJ on the podium ... what a great finish to yet another great event at Crandon."

In a show of their usual generosity, Forest County Potawatomi Community members upped the ante by $5,000 on Friday to make things even more interesting. The result was a packed gate for the Community Cup - one that saw the PRO 2WD trucks take off down Crandon's famous "Land Rush" start with a 12-second lead over Johnny Greaves and the rest of the PRO 4x4 field.

With his site set on race leader Jeff Kincaid, Johnny Greaves had to first work his way past his son, CJ, in his ultra-fast Monster Energy/Toyota/Maxxis PRO 2WD ride. Greaves fire-breathing No. 22 Toyota was up to the task as he methodically picked off the racers ahead of him - something that the other PRO 4x4 trucks were having difficulty accomplishing.

In the end Johnny Greaves would distance himself from the rest of the field of top PRO 4x4 and 2WD racers, hoisting the Community Cup aloft while flanked by Kincaid (2nd) and son CJ (3rd).

"The Forest County Potawatomi Tribe is honored to be involved with such a great event at Crandon," said Gus Frank, Forest County Potawatomi chairman. "We first got involved with off-road racing through Jeff Kincaid and Johnny Greaves. Those two supported us proudly across the nation and our relationship would grow with Crandon and, eventually, the F.C.P.C. Cup race. So it's a great honor to again be involved with such an exciting event as it enters its 20th year summer."

Civil War buffs bring history back to life

This weekend, July 4th, 5th & 6th will be the first running of the Mole Lake Casino Super Truck Challenge, and it promises to be exciting.

Big tires, engines and plenty of extras will be the norm for the competitors at obstacle course, the mud pit, stadium style racing, the sand and rock pit, and more events that test truck and drive.

The total $30,900 purse is bringing in competitors from far and away, and the mud drags have brought in an entry for Ricky B and other mud draggers from all over the South.

The event is held at the Raceway on Hwy 8, just west of Crandon, and spectators are an integral part of an event like this, so everyone is very welcome!

Camping Gate Opens Thursday, July 4th 6:00 a.m. with a Campsite for $50, $35 Weekend Admission, $25 Daily Admission, and Kids 12 and under & Adults 75 and over FREE.

Wabeno Library Summer Fun

Tuesdays At Two, And A Chance To Win Packers' Game Tickets

The Wabeno Library will once again be holding "Tuesdays at Two," hands-on art and other activities for children ages 5 and up that started Tuesday, July 2 and will run throughout the month of July. Local artist Connie Friesen and her husband Tim have once again graciously agreed to bring the big easels back to the library for kids to create art projects they can keep, as well as artwork for the community. The events are free and open to the public, but it is wise to call and indicate the number of children you expect to bring. Children do not have to participate every week, but the project will run through early August. The goal is to make art, and leave with a book that will count towards the children's summer reading challenge at the library. Teens are welcome both as artist participants, and volunteers to work with the younger children. Some of the artwork may be on display at the Bistro Café and Art Gallery in Wabeno, as part of their on-going summer activities as well.

Dollar-A-Day Boys!

A Musical Tribute to the Civilian Conservation Corps

Upper Peninsula based author/songwriter Bill Jamerson will present a music and storytelling program about the Civilian Conservation Corps at the Crandon Historical Museum on Wednesday evening, July 17 at 7pm. Jamerson will present from the porch of the museum. People are invited to bring lawn chairs and blankets to sit on. The event will be moved inside to the library in case of inclement weather. The program is sponsored by the Forest County Historical and Genealogical Society and is free and open to the public.

Jamerson will tell stories, read excerpts from his books and sing original songs with his guitar. He has performed at CCC reunions around the country and at dozens of CCC built national and state parks. His presentation is as entertaining as it is important; as honest as it is fun. It's about people both ordinary and extraordinary, with stories of wit, charm and strength.

The Civilian Conservation Corps was a federal works program created by President Franklin Roosevelt in the heart of The Great Depression. During its nine year run beginning in 1933, ninety two thousand young men worked in Wisconsin camps. There was an average of 46 camps in operation for each year. The enrollees were paid $1 a day with $25 sent home to their families each month. The money kept many families from starving.

Author Gerds will hold book signing, reading July 13 in Lakewood

Author and WFRV-TV Critic at Large Warren Gerds will make a personal appearance from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, July 13, at artist Joan White's Nicolet Studio, 15346 Gage St., just west of Highway 32 in Lakewood.

The free event includes a presentation at 1 p.m. that will include readings from Gerds' historical novel, "The Legend of Taylor Rapids," and a display of real-life items related to its story.

Gerds writes a daily blog for the WFRV website that may be found at click on Entertainment. He makes weekly live appearances on Green Bay's WFRV-TV at 6:45 p.m. Thursday and often creates a segment that is broadcast at 7:45 a.m. Sunday.

"The Legend of Taylor Rapids" returns to the era of logging, railroads and rugged life in wild Northern Wisconsin in 1914-1915 in vivid, comical and touching characters. The book is written in the form of a journal. Some objects in the story were found on family property in Marinette County or are from family history. The place in the book is real, and the characters are fictional as they tell what it was like to be alive in a lively era.

Gerds' previous books are collections of biographical stories: "Tales of a Newspaperman: Ice Bowl and Lombardi Through Time" and "My Father Lives in the Drawer." Gerds is completing "Real, Honest Sailing," a 320-page, 160-photograph non-fiction book with a Great Lakes captain.

Gerds was born in West Allis, grew up in Milwaukee and has lived in Green Bay since graduating from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee with a degree in journalism.

Gerds wrote for the Green Bay Press-Gazette for 45 years and was critic at large for 35 years. He wrote about theater, the arts, media, architecture and creative people as well as other topics. Gerds was voted Best of the Bay as best Press-Gazette reporter in 2010 and 2012.

5 Fun Outdoor Activities for Kids

There are an endless supply of fun activities and games that can be played once kids go outside. The best part is that many of these outdoor activities teach kids about nature, science, and a little patience while they are having fun. Here are five fun things for kids to do when they go outside.

Kids normally love to dig in the dirt. But this outdoor activity can also be educational with a few extra supplies. Parents can give kids a small pan, such as a cake pan, to add their dirt too. Let the kids water their dirt and keep it in a sunny spot.

Right away kids may begin to see worms and insects crawling out of the pan. In a few days seeds may begin to grow into grass and flowers. Kids can explore the many things in the ground that they normally never get a chance to see.

Explore the Mini Outdoors

There is no need to take kids on a hike someplace

grand for them to get a look at nature. With a simple magnifying glass and a nature journal, kids can get down in the grass and find some amazing things. Insects, worms, and other interesting creatures can be found hiding in the grass.

Solar Cooking

Kids can cook up a plate of 'smores using just the sun. The easiest way is to paint the outside of an empty, metal coffee can with black paint. Kids can put together their 'smores and lace it inside the can, leaving it in the sun. This is a fun way to learn about the power of the sun and cook a sweat treat without fire. Older kids may want to try more advanced solar cooking with a pizza box solar oven.

Treasure Hunt

Parents can join in this outdoor activity and be part of the fun. Hide a piece of treasure somewhere in the yard. Small toys work best, though parents can be creative and use whatever they have on hand. The parents can then draw out a simple map for the kids to follow to the treasure.

This is a great way for kids to understand maps, learn cooperation, and have an afternoon adventure.

Make a Sundial

Kids can make a simple sundial in the backyard using a large stick and a few rocks. With parental help, kids can bury a long stick in the ground leaving 7 to 12 inches sticking out of the ground. Kids can then mark each hour with a large rock or stone on the ground as the stick's shadow passes by.

Health-based violations remain low, with 96 percent of systems having no violations

MADISON - Wisconsin public water supply system operators reduced by one-third their violations of monitoring or reporting requirements for drinking water and continued their stellar record of serving water that met all health-based standards in 2012, a recently released report shows.

Also, a record 30 communities received low interest loans or grants from the Department of Natural Resources to help upgrade water treatment plants, pipes and other infrastructure to improve drinking water safety.

"We're pleased with continued exemplary performance by Wisconsin water system operators and by the important progress many systems made to assure safe water into the future," says Jill Jonas, who directs the DNR Drinking and Groundwater Bureau.

Ninety-six percent, or 10,999 of 11,409 public water systems, met all health-based standards. These systems had no water samples exceeding health-based standards for regulated contaminants, according to the 2012 Annual Drinking Water Report.

improve the safety of drinking water provided by smaller, non-municipally owned water systems is paying off - in 2012, monitoring and reporting violations dropped to 493 from 630 in 2011. Rural mobile home parks, apartment buildings and condominium complexes are among the non-municipal systems DNR has focused on because such water suppliers have tended to have more monitoring and reporting violations.

The department contracts with the Wisconsin Rural Water Association to provide technical help to these water suppliers, called OTM or "other-than-municipal" water systems.

"These systems are doing a much better job of collecting samples within the required time frame and reporting the results, providing more assurance that they are providing their customers with safe drinking water," says Jonas.

Violations for health-based standards remained low; the number of all public water systems with water samples testing high for one or more contaminants was 3.7 percent, or 418 systems. Of these, the smallest public water systems, the transient non-community system category that includes motels, restaurants, parks, taverns, churches and campgrounds had the highest number of violations, accounting for about 70 percent of health-based violations. Bacterial violations again ranked as the most common health-based violation, followed by violations for nitrates and radioactivity.

A violation of a health-based standard does not mean that people who drank the water experienced adverse health effects; it means users were exposed to what the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has determined to be an unreasonable risk of illness, or that the system failed to treat its water to the extent judged necessary.

To keep our treasured waters clean and healthy, don't pick up any aquatic hitchhikers this summer

Please don't pick up hitchhikers this summer, and I'm not talking about the ones you mom warned you to never stop for along highways. These hitchhikers are found on boats and trailers and in live wells and the bucket where you may keep the day's catch.

These hitchhikers -- aquatic invasive species (AIS) -- are non-native plants and animals that can harm our treasured Wisconsin waters and recreation and which are primarily spread when we are boating or fishing.

But by being alert and taking a few easy steps, you can curb the spread, and we can help in a host of ways.

Have you encountered AIS like Eurasian water-milfoil, zebra mussels or rusty crayfish in your favorite lake? Do you have questions on AIS "no transport" laws aimed at boaters and anglers? Are you aware of the numerous prevention, monitoring and control efforts taking place in Wisconsin?

Ever wonder who those folks with the blue shirts are out at the boat landing? Do you know local group/governments can apply for AIS grants through our DNR AIS Grants Program?

Or are you interested in joining the hundreds of volunteers working to monitor and prevent the spread of AIS?

Preventing the spread of aquatic invasive species takes effort from everyone who enjoys our state's waterways. Our surveys show that more than 90 percent of boaters know what they need to do to prevent the spread of AIS. We continue to educate boaters about AIS and we have also started to enforce the AIS laws in Wisconsin.

Please go to the DNR searchable website and type in "invasive species" for more on how we can all help keep Wisconsin lakes and fish healthy. The best place to start is by removing organic material from boats, trailers, and live wells.

Death Notices

EMMANUEL JOSEPH NACHTWEY, age 88, died Wednesday June 19, 2013 at the Oscar G. Johnson VA Medical Center, Iron Mountain, Michigan. He was born in Wabeno, on December 17, 1924 the son of Edward and Mabel (Allie) Nachtwey.

Emmanuel Nachtwey was a life-long musician and music educator. After serving in the US Army in Texas and France, he obtained his Bachelor's degree at Los Angeles State College, and among other teaching positions, he was director of instrumental music at Palmdale High School, Palmdale, California (1957-1967). Emmanuel loved to travel and was an expert on North American native history (history minor in college). On three occasions he returned to Wabeno to work and finally to retire. He shared his passion for music wherever he lived throughout his life by organizing music ensembles and by privately teaching students, many of them residents of Forest County.

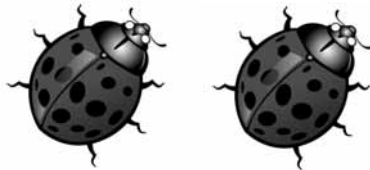

He is survived by his son, Dr. Ted Burkey (Memphis, TN) and stepson, Ron Abbitt (Citronelle, AL) as well as 25 nieces and nephews and their families. He is preceded in death by his parents and nine brothers and sisters: Albert, Marcella, Chester, Louella, Veronica, Emily, Floyd, Ester, and Vincent.

Visitation will be held Saturday July 27, 2013 12:00 PM at St. Ambrose Catholic Church followed by memorial services at 1 PM presided by Father Benjamin Sember.

BETTY E. PALUBICKI, age 85, of Crandon, passed away at her home surrounded by her family on Thursday, June 27, 2013. Visitation will be held on Monday, July 15 from 4:00-7:00 p.m. at the Weber-Hill Funeral Home, Crandon and again on Tuesday, July 16 from 9:00-10:00 a.m. at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Crandon. Funeral service will follow at 10:00 a.m. with Pastor Barbara Bolz officiating. Interment will be at Forest Home Cemetery, Jennings. ## Dollar a Day Continued from page 1

In Wisconsin, the CCC planted 265 million trees, built 483 bridges, erected over 4,000 miles of telephone poles, constructed 4,300 miles of truck trails, stocked half a billion fish, fought forest fires, and built several state parks including Rib Mountain, Interstate, Devil's Lake, Peninsula Park, Copper Falls and Wyalusing. The camps not only revitalized Wisconsin's natural resources but also turned the boys into men by giving them discipline and teaching them work skills. In June of 1933 Camp #649 outside of Crandon opened. There were also camps in Goodman, Dunbar, Laona, Antigo and other communities. For more information on camp locations visit CCCLegacy.org.

Jamerson's book, BIG SHOULDERS is a historical novel that follows a year in the life of a seventeen-year-old youth from Detroit who enlisted in the CCC in 1937. The enrollee joins two hundred other young men at Camp Raco, a work camp in Michigan's Upper Peninsula run by reserve army officers. It is a coming-of-age story of an angry teenager who faces the rigors of hard work, learning to cope with a difficult sergeant and fending off a bully.

Some of the songs Jamerson performs with his guitar include Franklin D., written by an appreciative CCC Boy., Chowtime, a fun look at the camp food, City Slicker, which tells of the mischief the boys find in the woods, and Tree Plantin', Fire Fightin' Blues that tells of the hardships of work out in the woods. The folk songs range from heartwarming ballads to foot stomping jigs.

Jamerson was called "...the Upper Peninsula's troubadour," by the Ontonagon Herald. He performs "History Through Song" programs on ski jumpers, iron miners, lumberjacks and more. Along with a novel and CD's of songs, Jamerson produced the PBS film, Camp Forgotten, which aired on Wisconsin Public Television in 1994. He has also authored several articles on the corps. In his talk, Bill will talk about some of the interesting enrollees he has met over the years and CCC projects he has visited. A question and answer period and book signing will follow his presentation. Former CCC men and their families are encouraged to attend and asked to bring photo albums and CCC memorabilia. For more information please call the museum at 478-3559 or visit Jamerson's website at: BillJamerson.com.

Keep Your Sight, Know the Dangers of Fireworks

By Angel MedFlight Contributor

As we close in on the annual Independence Day celebration, we look forward to taking in a fireworks show. And when it comes to safety, having trained professionals set off those pyrotechnics is the only way one should enjoy fireworks. The potential risk of setting off fireworks yourself is too great. Prevent Blindness America reminds us during National Fireworks Safety Month that injuries from fireworks accidents can affect us for the rest of our lives.

Children are especially prone to fireworks accidents. There is a great temptation for them to tag along with the rest of the neighborhood kids and set off firecrackers, smoke bombs, sparkling geysers and more. It's not just the person lighting the fireworks who are risking injury but bystanders as well.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, there were an estimated 8,700 consumers treated in U.S. hospital emergency rooms for fireworks-related injuries in 2012 and of those injuries 600 hundred were to the eyes. The CPSC's annual report says 60 percent of all fireworks injuries occur during the 30 days surrounding the July 4th holiday.

Most injuries were associated with fireworks that malfunctioned or were used improperly. Fireworks that malfunction travel in an unexpected flight path and drop dangerous debris. Improper use includes lighting a firework too close to someone or lighting fireworks while holding them and playing with lit or used fireworks.

As for those fireworks that are frequently considered 'safe' for children, like bottle rockets and sparklers? They aren't safe at all. The CPSC report shows that about 1,000 reported injuries in 2012 involved bottle rockets and sparklers. According to the CPSC's report, sparklers and bottle rockets combined caused 24 percent of fireworks-related injuries and 23 percent were caused by firecrackers.

Prevent Blindness America offers a number of tips to prevent fireworks-related injuries. First on the list is to not purchase, use or store fireworks of any type. Also be aware that sparklers are dangerous and cause 50% of fireworks injuries in children 14 and younger. They recommend attending only authorized public fireworks displays which are conducted by licensed operators. But they warn that injuries can still occur at those types of displays.

Prevent Blindness America is the nation's leading volunteer eye health and safety organization. Founded in

Wabeno Library

The staff invites you to come enjoy a public storytelling event July 10 at 11 a.m. to be held at the American Legion Hall, 4494 North Branch Street. Storyteller Tracy Chipman of Menominee, WI. will have interactive stories with ties to Wisconsin and world. This event is free and open to the public. The library director recommends that you call for further information. Reservations are not required.

Come in and pick up entry forms for the "Leap Into Reading" Program too. The deadline for mailing your entry is July 11; the entry must be postmarked no later than July 11, for arrival no later than July 18th. Children and teens enter to win tickets to a Packers Game, and a savings certificate for college at the library too. The contest and program are co-sponsored by Ed-Vest, The Green Bay Packers, and the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction. The program was created to create awareness of the EdVest Program, an affordable way for families to save for college:
<https://www.edvest.com/plan/index.shtml>

One student will be chosen from each of the regional library system areas; Wabeno is a member of the Wisconsin Valley Library System. Entry is free with no purchases required.

Students who join the summer reading challenge are also invited to our end-of-summer pizza party to be held at the library in August.

For further information, contact the Wabeno Library, 4556 North Branch St., Wabeno: 715-473-4131.

Wabeno's Rummage-O-Rama

Submitted by Joan Schertz of Friends of Wabeno
The Wabeno area Rummage-O-Rama will be here before we know it, on Saturday, August 10 from 8 am to 4 pm. This includes, not only the town of Wabeno, but also Freedom, Carter, Blackwell and Trump Lake.

Anyone interested in participating can call 715-889-4293 to be placed on the map free of charge. The maps will be available at many local businesses.

The event is coming up sooner than you think, so start tagging stuff and give us a call.

Please respond by July 31, 2013, so we have time to put everyone on the map, have copies made and distributed.

By Mike Monte

You may be aware that this is the 150th Anniversary of the Civil War battle that took place in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania is now, during our 4th of July celebration 150 years ago.

There are two young men in northern Oconto County who could easily be labeled Civil War "nuts," but the correct word would probably be "historian."

These two fellows have been interested in Civil War history since they were kids, and they used to have their own re-enactments at Beverly Scheuerman's campground. She is the one who called us and thought we might like to feature these two historians in the Pioneer.

They made the trip to our office and subjected themselves to an interview about their passion for history and especially Civil War history. Jake Kroll, the Confederate in the photo above, is 16 years of age, and Patrick Kroll, age 17, is dressed in Union garb. They have participated in a re-enactment at Heritage Hill in Green Bay, and re-enact historical battles on their own in the woods around Townsend and Lakewood and at Beverly's campground. They put on a historical performance at the Upper Room Family Church in Townsend, and will be in the parade this Thursday at the Townsend July 4th Festival.

The two cousins will switch sides during their Civil War historical sessions, and both have an extensive knowledge of battles, generals and the politics of the war that defined the country we live in today.

During our conversation, we talked the Battle of Gettysburg and some of the major figures in that defining battle. It was the farthest north that the Confederate would get during the war. Their defeat signaled the beginning of the end for the war that would drag out for almost two more years. The northern victory gave an impetus for the complete removal of slavery from the country and gave Lincoln a better chance to win the election in 1864.

The Civil War vets explained that on the first day of the battle, which was on July 1st, 1863, Union forces entered the village of Gettysburg, but they didn't get to stay there. Parts of the 1st and 11th Corps ran into the Confederates coming into the village, and they had a street fight backing out of town into the surrounding countryside, where a battle took place on McPherson's Ridge. Confederate General Archer was captured.

They talked of the 2nd day of the battle when the fight for Little Round Top and Culp's Hill took place. Patrick, sliding back into time, said he participated in the fight for Culp's Hill, meaning the Iron Brigade, and the uniform he is wearing in the photo above is Iron Brigade, part of which were units from Wisconsin. In this battle, unlike many others in the Civil War, the Union forces held the high ground at Cemetery Ridge, Culp's Hill, Little Round Top, the Peach Orchard, and the Wheatfield. It was up to the rebel army to dislodge the federal troops, and it was more than they could accomplish.

Jake Kroll, who was representing the 14th Virginia last Tuesday, talked of being in Pickett's Charge on the 3rd day of the battle. He said he made it to the Emmitsburg Pike, and like many others found it suicide to try to climb the rail fence to continue the charge. From his vantage point he could see Lo Armistead lead his North Carolina troops to the angle, which was a corner in a stone fence. This was the farthest extent of the charge, with tremendous losses to the Confederate army.

Armistead was killed, as were many of his men. Patrick said the Iron Brigade was not actively engaged on this last fight of the Gettysburg battle, but watched the fight in reserve.

These two young men are walking history books, as many of the Civil War re-enactors are, but most don't get this involved until later in life. We commend them for helping bringing this important conflict back to the prominence it deserves in our nation's history.

Many of us have ancestors who fought in this war. For many people in the Crandon, Elton, or White Lake area, we have veterans in our family tree from both armies, and many of us with Kentucky ancestry had people who were in the 14th Virginia.

I lost a relative who was shot dead at the Emmitsburg Pike. My wife's great grandfather served with the 26th Wisconsin, and he was one of the Union soldiers who fought their way out of the village at Gettysburg when the Confederate Army came in. It wasn't really that long ago, and Jake and Patrick are helping keep that history alive. They are also looking for anybody else who would like to participate in re-enacting.

Tips to Get Rid of Allergies

Allergies can be a huge inhibiting factor to your enjoyment in life. They keep you indoors when all the fun and beauty of nature is what you want to be doing, and they keep you running for the tissue box and nasal spray! To finally get some relief from your allergy symptoms, keep reading!

If you have a child with allergies, look around his or her room. Are there an abundance of stuffed animals? These seemingly harmless snuggle toys are a safe harbor for dust mites and other allergens. If your child must sleep with one, try taking it away after he or she falls asleep.

If you have a choice, avoid placing carpeting or large rugs in any rooms in your home. Keeping carpet spotless and clean is practically a lost cause; the fibers can house vast quantities of mites, pet dander, dust and other common allergens. Flooring that can be cleaned easily is more practical.

If you have allergies, do not leave the windows open, no matter where you are this. Whether at home, or in the car, keep the windows shut, and put the air conditioner on. Leaving the windows open allows allergy triggers to come in. Which of course, will bother your allergies.

If you rely heavily on nasal decongestants to treat the symptoms of allergic rhinitis, you may be at risk for experiencing a rebound effect. When this happens, you may experience additional swelling and irritation. If you become hooked on these drugs, you should make an effort avoid using them for a period of 72 hours at a time. During this time, switch to an antihistamine to reduce swelling caused by withdrawal.

Natural remedies are available for those who are plagued by allergies. You will find that a lot of common allergy triggers have effective natural remedies associated with them that you can try. You will be able to achieve reductions in itchy eyes, sneezing and breathing issues.

People who suffer from food allergies are generally the ones who need to be the most careful. While other types of allergies can be annoying, food allergies tend to be the most fatal. This is especially true of people who suffer from allergies to shellfish or nuts, such as shrimp or hazelnut.

In the first few months of their lives, household pets like dogs and cats generally have little to no dander. As they get older, shedding and dander problems become more pronounced. Because the animal has lived in the house up to that point, owners may be reluctant to believe their beloved pet is the cause of the sudden onset of allergic symptoms. An allergy test can help to identify the true culprit.

As previously noted, allergies can really keep you from doing the things, you love in life, and even things that simply need to get done. After having read this article, you should have some new and useful ideas on how to cope with and overcome allergies. Hopefully, you can now get down to the business of living, with less suffering and symptoms.

Fourth of July Safety for Kids

Families love to celebrate the Fourth of July by cooking out, swimming, and watching fireworks light the sky. Celebrating outside can be lots of fun, but if parents aren't diligent about safety, common Independence Day activities can cause serious injuries to children, especially activities that involve firecrackers, water, and sun exposure.

Fireworks are a staple of Independence Day, but firecrackers are dangerous. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), 9,800 people were treated in emergency rooms for fireworks-related injuries in 2007. Four out of every 10 of these fireworks injuries were to children under the age of 15. The most common places firecracker injuries occur are to the eyes, hands, head, and face.

Even seemingly harmless sparklers can reach more than 1000° F - hot enough to cause serious burns to children. The best way to prevent these injuries is to let the experts handle the firecrackers while children watch from a safe distance. But for families who insist on popping their own fireworks this Independence Day, keep the kiddos safe with these tips:

- Never allow children to handle firecrackers.
- Keep a container of water close by to pour on firecrackers that malfunction.
- Never try to relight malfunctioning firecrackers.
- Pop firecrackers in a clear, open, outdoor space.
- Keep kids out of the range of firecrackers.
- Never ignite bunches of firecrackers at one time.
- Don't ignite fireworks in containers.

Sun Safety for Independence Day

Overexposure to the sun can increase kids' risks of skin cancer, glaucoma, and cataracts during adulthood. According to the American Academy of Dermatology, people get most of their sun exposure before the age of 18, so sun protection during childhood is vital. Here are some tips to protect young children from too much sun on the Fourth of July:

- Dress kids in light colored, long sleeve shirts and pants.
- Apply a kid-formulated sunblock with an SPF of 15 or higher to exposed areas of the skin.
- Keep infants under six months out of direct sunlight.
- Keep kids out of the sun between 10am and 3pm when the sun's rays are the most damaging.
- Cover each child's head with a wide brimmed hat to protect the head and neck from the sun.
- Provide kids with wraparound sunglasses that block at least 99 percent of the sun's ultraviolet rays.

Fourth of July Swimming Pool Safety for Kids

It doesn't take long for a child to disappear underwater and drown. Drowning is the second leading cause of accidental death in young kids. Children who are fortunate enough to survive being submerged underwater can suffer irreversible neurological damage. So in addition to requiring youngsters to wear life vests in the water, the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission offers these tips to keep kids safe in the swimming pool:

- If a child is missing, look in the pool first.
- Don't use flotation devices as a substitute for supervision.
- Keep rescue equipment and a telephone near the pool. • Learn CPR.
- Install a self-closing, self-latching fence around the pool. Gates should be at least four-feet high.
- Use alarms on doors that lead to the pool.
- Use a motor-powered barrier over the water to prevent access by young children.
- Remove steps and ladders on above ground swimming pools when they are not in use.

When parents are diligent about sun, swimming pool, and firework safety, kids can showcase their patriotism without the risk of injury when celebrating Independence Day.

Fun Fishing with Kids, Take Your Children Fishing

Taking children fishing can be fun, but also challenging. Remembering a few key steps can help make your fishing experience with children a success.

Fishing with children can be one of the most rewarding experiences that an adult can enjoy, it can also be one of the biggest challenges that an adult can experience. When taking children fishing there are some important steps to remember and some important things to understand.

The Basics

First of all most children will simply be excited to get outdoors and may be a lot less concerned with catching a fish than simply having a fun time. As parents we may sometimes lose sight of this simple truth and instead become fixated on the absolute need to catch a fish at all costs. The picture of a father standing out in a torrential downpour with howling winds and crashing thunder next to a crying child comes to mind, therefore step one is to make reasonable goals for your first child-based fishing excursions. Explain to the child or children what the expected outcomes are and take the opportunity to talk about enjoying the outdoors as much as the actual act of fishing.

Practice makes Perfect

Secondly it is also important to understand and recognize that children are still developing their fine motor skills and the act of fishing usually involves the use of at least some fine motor skills, so practice is imperative. The act of practicing for an upcoming fishing trip can also be made fun. Back yard casting sessions and knot tying lessons are just a couple of ways that an adult can help prepare a young fishing enthusiast before the actual big trip.

Make it a Safe Trip

In addition to practice and skills preparation,

This can be a great outside activity that will last for many days, and have longtime use after it is done.

Getting outside and having fun is a great way for kids to enjoy their backyards. Doing outside activities that also teach kids about science and nature makes for a fun and educational day.

<http://suite101.com/article/5-fun-outdoor-activities-for-kids-a222300> safety is also of major importance. No act or event will sour a young fisherman faster than a near death experience such as falling in the river or getting hooked with a barbed hook. Regardless of the type of fishing make sure that the child or children have the proper equipment for the occasion including a properly sized life jacket, sun glasses, rain jacket, or other essential items. Additionally if your fishing adventures often take you into remote areas or miles off shore make sure that you are watching the weather forecast and avoid taking the kids out on a day when the forecast looks more like a hurricane warning than a sunny picnic day.

Get out there and Fish

Finally the number one rule with teaching anyone to do something as fun and exciting as fishing is to remember the golden rule and treat others as you would like to be treated. Children are especially sensitive to angry words and grumpy adults who have lost sight of the simple joys of being outdoors and fishing with a friend..

Drain water from live wells, bilges and pumps. Put your catch on ice instead of in a bucket full of water.

To minimize the spread of these invasive species the law requires water to be drained from our live wells and bilges even if they contain your day's catch. To help preserve your Friday fish fry the DNR has been handing out thousands of ice packs to place onto the fish to preserve until filleting.

The outside and inside of the boat, trailer, live wells, bilges, and pumps should be disinfected

Wisconsin made significant progress in 2012 in efforts to prevent, contain, and control the damage done by AIS, capitalizing on increased federal funding and growing involvement by counties and volunteers.

With your help, we can continue to keep AIS in check. About 200 lakes were monitored this year as part of a five-year process to paint a more accurate picture of where aquatic invasive species are found across the state, and how fast they're spreading, and to evaluate the effectiveness of outreach and education efforts.

The number of counties actively partnering with the state to prevent and control the spread of aquatic invasive species is growing. Over the July 4 holiday, for instance, a record 53 counties will have volunteers and paid staff at boat launches to provide free boat inspections, hand out limited supplies of towels and ice pack, and help raise awareness of steps to prevent the spread of aquatic invasive species.

Efforts to engage new partners in geographic areas where there were gaps in the past are paying off. We continue to partner with nearly 200 bait shops to help spread the word and this year, high school students from Siren will help raise awareness at boat launches in Burnett County over the July 4 holiday.

These partnerships helped spread the AIS prevention message to even more water users in 2012 with nearly 110,000 boats inspected and 233,000 people contacted.

The results are encouraging.. 70 percent of lakes with public access were free of Eurasian water-milfoil, despite that invader being here in Wisconsin for more than 50 years. And 82 percent of suitable lakes with public access are still clear of zebra mussels, present inland for more than 20 years.

Rapid response efforts have been successful at eliminating new infestations of species like hydrilla, red swamp crayfish, yellow floating heart, Vietnamese water celery, water chestnut, grass carp and several other invasive species in Wisconsin.

Research has led to new techniques that are providing alternative for the control of aquatic invasive species, early season treatment of Eurasian water-milfoil, innovative techniques to control rainbow smelt, development of products that have the potential to control zebra mussels, or detian Ascar carp from moving upstream are all showing signs of success.

Other highlights include, Eurasian Water Milfoil found in 642 water bodies in the state (2012 data), Zebra mussels found in 149 water bodies in the state (2012 data). Over 180 AIS in Great Lakes, but no new invasive aquatic species are known to have been introduced through ballast water since changes in ballast water management regulations were implemented in 2006. Over 110,000 boats inspected for AIS in 2012. Over 232,000 boaters surveyed at launches in 2012. $3.6 million in grants were awarded to local communities for aquatic invasive species prevention and control in 2012, bringing to $20 million the grant money awarded to local communities since 2003 for aquatic invasive species prevention and control.

$200,000 was awarded to local communities for Clean Boats Clean Waters grant program following expedited process developed in 2013.

DNR Days and fishing a winning combo
 MADISON - Discounted licenses make it even easier for anglers to get all of their family and friends out fishing over the July 4th holiday. And now, a new promotional effort can make it easier and cheaper to get them out to the old ball game.
 All Wisconsin fishing and hunting license holders can qualify for reduced-rate tickets to select ballgames at Miller Park on "DNR Days" in July, August and September. "Fishing and baseball - what a great way to have fun with family and friends," says DNR Secretary Cathy Stepp. "Reel in the fish - and then watch Carlos Gomez reel in the big hits and fly balls."
 For $20, Wisconsin residents can buy an annual resident fishing license that gives them 365 days of fishing for about 18 cents a day. There also are options for resident and nonresidents alike to get fishing at a bargain rate.
 *Fishing is always free for kids 15 and under. This includes resident and nonresidents!
 *Fishing is always free for Wisconsin residents born before 1927.
 *Fishing is always free for active resident members of the Armed Services.
 *$5 buys an annual license for a Wisconsin resident who's never bought a Wisconsin fishing license or who hasn't bought one in 10 or more years; the cost is $25.75 for non-residents.
 *$8 buys a 1-day fishing license for Wisconsin residents, the cost is $10 for non-residents.
 *$7 buys a license for Wisconsin 16- and 17-year olds and for residents 65 and older.
 *And there are more fishing license options available for residents and non-residents.
 Buying a license is easy and convenient over the Internet through the Online Licensing Center on the DNR website; at authorized sales locations, or by calling toll-free 1-877-LICENSE (1-877-945-4236).

Red Arrow Snowmobile Club is compiling their history

"Red Arrow Snowmobile ATV Club, headquartered in Townsend, is in the process of writing its history," says newly-elected Red Arrow President Joseph Kamp. "In that regard, I have directed our Secretary Mary Stehula to assemble an ad hoc committee." Mary has recruited Rhonda Kroll, Kathleen Marsh, and Therese Erler. The group met June 27 to establish goals, procedures, and assign duties.

"Red Arrow turns 45 this year," said Stehula. "So much has happened since the club was officially founded in 1968. Our committee's goal is to gather information to document our past 45 years and then update each year going forward. We would like to publish a detailed accounting of Red Arrow's first 50 years in 2108."

Anyone having old club minutes, photos, pertinent documents, or personal recollections is asked to contact Mary Stehula at misteh@ezwebtech (715-276-7769) or Kathleen Marsh at kathiemarsh@yahoo.com (715-276-6515).

WATCH US CHANGE!

Northern Health Centers is changing to improve the care we provide to you and your family!

Implementing an electronic health record system will allow us to share your health information with other providers you see. You will also be able to access your health records on line if you wish.

Choosing a primary care provider helps you gain a trusting relationship with a medical professional and a primary care team that includes your provider, registered nurse, medical assistant, lab, x-ray and health educator along with enabling services, dental and behavioral health as needed.

Prescriptions will now be electronically sent to the pharmacy of your choice. Instead of calling us to request a refill, simply call your pharmacy. The rest is completed through our electronic health record.

We are working hard to become your quality Patient Centered Medical Home (PCMH). Coordination of your health needs is very important to us as we strive to obtain certification as a PCMH with national recognition.
