Lumberjack Steam Train finishes a successful season with a record day

Train robbing was a job that provided opportunities to women and men. This tough-looking galoot is a pretty lady under the duster and the bandana!

The Lumberjack Steam Train finished another successful season with a record amount of passengers riding the train to the Camp 5 Logging Museum. Saturday was the largest attendance in the history of the Lumberjack Steam Train and Camp 5 Logging Museum. While there, visitors to this special place participated in pumpkin decorating, face painting, the Green Treasure Forest Tour, the Haunted Slaughterhouse, the Logging Museum and more, but this day, they rode a vintage train that was robbed!

The Green Bushwacker Cowboy Re-enactors made their last trip of 2015 to the Camp 5 complex, and it was a special day. The train was robbed on every trip, and instead of the Lumberjack Steam Train making four runs from the depot, the old steamer made six. Three more runs were needed to bring the passengers back from Camp 5 to the depot. One of the Cowboys said that he had robbed the train six times, but always had to give the loot back!

The Cowboys put on a great show, and it is always special when they come to rob the train and mingle with the visitors. The marshal always tries to prevent the robbery, but is always unsuccessful. He is also outnumbered by the bad guys. With six runs, the train robbers had a busy day. In fact, they were running out of blank ammunition.

It was a great ending to another great season for the Lumberjack Steam Train and the Camp 5 Logging Museum.

Next summer, this great attraction at Laona, Wisconsin will again feature the famous Lumberjack Steam Train and all of the other great attractions with a special twist. It will be the 100th birthday of Ol' 4-Spot, the Lumberjack Steam Train that has thrilled so many visitors through the years, but started out hauling logs to the big mill in Laona. The Vulcan steam engine is one of just a few steam trains that are still operable and able to go to work.

If you would like to take a ride on one of the last steam trains still working, check out their website at lumberjacksteamtrain.org. Bring the family for a memorable time.

After a long day of train robbing, a guy can get a little short of blank bullets. Not wanting to miss the thrill of possibly shooting the marshal, this robber borrows extra rounds from his friend.

Historic photo collection now available online by the Crandon Public Library

In the photo above, the boiler from the Kempf Planing Mill lays in the snow after bouncing off the roof of the house in the background. The date was March 17, 1908. It was the last day of operation for the mill, as the owner, Kempf, was killed in the explosion. Two more men were killed, and a third injured. This home still stands at 605 N. Hazeldell.

The Crandon Public Library is excited to announce the release of an online historic photo collection containing 185 images of early Crandon. The collection, made up of images from the City of Crandon's Community Building Collection, was originally created for the Crandon Community Building in 1986 by Dwight Smith. At that time, Mr. Smith accepted photos from numerous Crandon families including the Keith family, Wayne and Shirley Coleman, Irvine and Lucille Carpenter, Deward and Almeda Ison, Lyle and Honey Jackson and Omer Lundt.

In 2014, volunteers from the Crandon Library noting that the original photos lining the entrance to City Hall for the past 29 years were beginning to deteriorate, scanned each of the photos and professionally re-printed the photos for the public display. The scanned images were then cataloged by library staff and uploaded to an off-site server allowing them to be accessible online.

The benefits of having the photos online are numerous. Out-of-town researchers, local residents and students can now access the photos 24 hours per day, seven days a week. Due to space constraints, some of the photos contained in the online collection were not used in the actual community building display so many of the images have not been seen by the general public. Additionally, because the photos now have subject headings attached to the photo, users can search for specific locations and events in Crandon history.

The online collection can be accessed through the library's website at www.crandonpl.org.

Nicolet College Foundation's A Day for Nicolet kicks off Oct. 6

The Nicolet College Foundation will kick off its biggest fundraising event of the year Oct. 6 when A Day for Nicolet gets underway throughout the Northwoods.

"Every dollar contributed to A Day for Nicolet is used for student scholarships," said Nicolet College Foundation Executive Director Heather Schallock. "These scholarships have played an important role in supporting Nicolet students as they earn their degrees and diplomas. Without this financial support, many students would find it impossible to continue their education."

This is the 15th year of the event.

During the kick-off October 6, teams of volunteers will begin visiting businesses, organizations, clubs, and individuals throughout the region to generate donations.

To date the event has raised more than $1 million and resulted in the foundation being able to award more than 1,400 scholarships to help students fund their college educations.

Anyone wanting more information regarding A Day for Nicolet or would like to make a contribution can contact Schallock at (715) 365-4518, 1-800-544-3039, ext. 4518; TTY 1-800-947-3529.

New phone scam announced by Chief Packard

Submitted by Chief Packard

My department has recently been made aware of a new telephone scam in the City of Crandon. The caller claims to represent the Wisconsin Public Service (WPS), then advises that the customer's payment is late, and that the customer must send a cashier's check for the amount past due (which is specified by the caller). The caller then provides an address to send the cashier's check to.

If you should receive any calls like this, NEVER respond or send money. And as always, never provide any personal information to an unknown caller!

Learn to fish muskies

The Wisconsin DNR, along with local area fishing instructors, will be holding the 2nd Annual Learn-To-Fish Musky event on October 24th, 2015 at Johnnie's Resort, located at 6995 Potawatomi Trail Road Laona.

The event will start at 9:00 a.m. with classroom lessons aimed toward musky identification, biology, and fishing techniques.

Following classroom lessons, participants will then hit the water with local fishing volunteers for a chance to catch musky. The event is being held free of charge to participants, with the exception that all participants engaged in fishing will be required to possess a valid Wisconsin fishing license. Participants will be provided with all the necessary equipment and boat to fish. Organizers are looking to have approximately 8-10 participants for the event that will be first come/first serve basis.

If interested in participating, or for general questions regarding the event, please contact Conservation Warden Brad Dahlquist at 715-478-5610.

Call to all Vendors & Bakers
9th Annual Christmas from the Heart

Ministry Home Care – Hospice will hold their ninth annual Christmas from the Heart event on Saturday, November 14 at Ministry Saint Mary's Hospital. The event has grown in many ways over the years, bringing shoppers out to buy unique gifts and goodies for everyone on their lists.

Crafters and vendors reserve 10x10 display spaces for just $25 at which to sell their goods – reservations are due by November 6. At the close of the sale, each vendor gives at least 10% of their day's income to Ministry Home Care – Hospice Services, as a donation toward patient and family care. Ministry Home Care provides comprehensive care to individuals who are in their last months of life, and provides emotional, social and spiritual support for their family members as well. This care is provided to anyone who is medically eligible, regardless of their ability to pay – events like this help to cover the cost of caring for those who are under-insured or uninsured.

One popular feature of the event is their Cookie Walk – delicious baked goods are donated and primarily sold by the pound, allowing buyers to choose their unique selection. Bakers are encouraged to drop off their delectable creations at the Ministry Home Care office in Rhinelander (1864 N. Stevens Street – back building) on Friday, November 13 before 3 p.m.

FoodShare & Medical Expenses

by the GWAAR Legal Services Team

FoodShare provides funds for individuals to purchase food on a monthly basis. The amount of funds an individual receives from the program is based on that person's income. There are certain deductions that may be used to decrease an individual's countable income for FoodShare purposes, and increase the amount of benefit that is received. In this article, we will focus on medical expenses, but there are a total of six deductions available including:

- Standard deduction
- Earned income deduction
- Medical expenses deduction
- Child support payment deduction
- Dependent care expense deduction
- Shelter expense deduction

The medical expenses deduction is very useful and can ease the burden of having high medical costs for a given month. Reporting your medical expenses to FoodShare can help tip the scale between having to decide on whether to eat or get a medical service.

When an individual is enrolled in FoodShare, he or she may submit medical expenses to the county income maintenance (IM) consortium. Expenses are compared with the individual's income, rent, utilities, Medicare premiums, and other expenses to calculate a lower income for that individual. If income is lowered, the FoodShare benefit amount may increase.

If the individual is applying or about to recertify for FoodShare, past unpaid medical bills may be used to prospectively budget the individual's FoodShare amount for the next certification period. Medical expenses paid prior to recertification cannot be used to increase the individual's FoodShare benefit after the recertification or enrollment.

There are two ways to use one-time medical expenses, such as a single medical bill without a payment plan, to increase the FoodShare benefit amount:

- Use the entire expense(s) for as an amount counted for one month;
- Average the expense across the remaining months left in the certification period.

Medical expenses that are on-going, such as an individual's Medicare Part B premium, would be applied as an ongoing medical expense and used as deduction in the FoodShare calculation each month.

Similar to Medicaid, the FoodShare beneficiary must provide verifications of his or her medical expenses. Once the IM consortia has received the verifications, the case worker will determine whether the expense -- if a one-time medical expense -- should be averaged over the remaining months of certification or used to boost FoodShare benefits for one month. If the FoodShare beneficiary has a preferred method for how the medical expenses are used, he or she should provide written notice of his or her preference for using the expense for one month or averaged out for multiple months.

For more information, and a full list of allowable medical expenses, consult the FoodShare Handbook, section 4.6.4 online at: www.emhandbooks.wisconsin.gov/fsh/fsh.htm.

Johnson supports Craft Beverage Modernization and Tax Reform Act

"...we need to find areas of agreement. This bill is one of them, as its bipartisan support shows. I welcome other senators to join me as a cosponsor."

WASHINGTON — Sen. Ron Johnson (R-Wis.) on Tuesday urged Senate colleagues to support a bill to scale back the taxes the federal government levies on beer, spirits and wine. The bill, S.1562, the Craft Beverage Modernization and Tax Reform Act, was led by Sen. Ron Wyden, an Oregon Democrat, and is cosponsored by Johnson and bipartisan group of 19 other senators.

"Our economy's painfully slow growth under President Obama has harsh consequences for Americans, who have seen a decline in real household incomes over the past six years," said Johnson. "Part of a solution lies in easing the burden of an uncompetitive tax system on American job creators - including entrepreneurs who are bringing new growth to the brewing and distilling industries."

"That is why I am pleased to cosponsor the Craft Beverage Modernization and Tax Reform Act. It scales back taxes unique to the brewing, distilling and winemaking industries that hold back American businesses and workers. It eases the tax burden on American consumers. And it will provide relief to Wisconsin's smaller craft brewers and to its larger global brewers, not limiting the relief to just one segment of the industry. As we start reforming our tax system, we need to find areas of agreement. This bill is one of them, as its bipartisan support shows. I welcome other senators to join me as a cosponsor."

For Old Time's Sake

This is a shot near Nelma, in northern Forest County. Logging was done a little differently back then. While we still clear cut certain species, like aspen, balsam, spruce at times, most of our current logging is select cut logging. This is probably after a fire burned the brush from the tops plus all of the small timber not take by the logging operation. The idea was that the forested lands would be used for farming. This shot was taken about 1937. There might be a farm there today, but it is more than likely grown back in timber, and was probably logged again since this picture was taken.

First Annual Punkin Chunkin Contest at Laona High

This week, Physics students at Laona High School designed and constructed punkin' chunkin' trebuchets as part of their studies in linear and projectile motion.

The students were split into three teams and moved to the school shop, under the direction of Mr. Kircher, Science teacher and Mr. Kelley, Technology Teacher. On Wednesday morning, they rolled out their machines and met on the Sports field and began testing.

After several attempts and a couple punkin' pies, The Jocks, came out on top, achieving throws of up to 100 yards. The winning trebuchet and team were also featured at the Homecoming festivities in Laona and they demonstrated their machine by hurling pumpkins for the audience.

Medicare open enrollment is coming soon

Fall is the perfect time to take care of things around your house -- like turning your clocks back and changing smoke detector batteries. Another important item on your fall checklist is Medicare's Open Enrollment, which runs from October 15-December 7. It's important that your health plan meets the changing demands in your life, so now's your chance to review your coverage and see if you need to make any changes for next year. Or you may decide your happy with the plan you have now. If that's the case, and the plan is still being offered next year, you don't need to do anything.

Over the next few months, look around -- you'll find a wealth of information about your Medicare benefits, especially in these everyday places:

- In the mail -- check your mail carefully -- you may get important notices from your current plan, Medicare or Social Security about changes to your coverage or any extra help you may get paying for your prescription drugs.

- On your computer -- Comparing your plan choices is important. Our Medicare Plan Finder is ready with all of the 2016 health and drug cost information to make it as easy as possible.

- In your community -- Take a moment as you enjoy these crisp mornings to review the Medicare information that's out there. You may find a local event -- somewhere right around the corner with counselors to help you. Don't miss the chance to get personalized help if you need it.

Now is the time to enjoy the choice and control you have over your health care coverage. Just like fall, Medicare Open Enrollment only comes once a year.

For questions or one-on-one help, call 715-362-8277, Kate Schultz EBS, at the ADRC.

Governor Proclaims October It Can Wait: Distracted Driving Awareness Month

As students settle into a new school year, Governor Scott Walker has proclaimed October as It Can Wait® - Distracted Driving Awareness Month throughout Wisconsin and is urging all residents, particularly teens, to take the pledge to keep their eyes on the road, not on their phones.

New research from AT&T shows that smartphone use has grown beyond texting, with 7 in 10 people engaging in smartphone activities while driving. Texting and emailing are still the most prevalent. But other smartphone use behind the wheel is now common, with 4 in 10 drivers tapping into social media.

"Today's drivers are engaging in far too many smartphone distractions behind the wheel that are very dangerous and potentially deadly," said Wisconsin State Patrol Superintendent Stephen Fitzgerald. "We are encouraging all drivers to put down their phones and keep their focus on the road."

The Wisconsin State Patrol, AT&T and AAA also announced today that they are teaming up for the sixth year on a series of high school events around the state to drive home the dangers of distracted driving. Twenty-five assemblies will be held at high schools across Wisconsin throughout the 2015-16 school year.

The effort is part of AT&T's It Can Wait® campaign, which has been expanded this year from a focus on texting while driving to include other smartphone activities now common behind the wheel.

"When we launched the It Can Wait campaign five years ago, our message was simple - no text is worth a life," said Scott T. VanderSanden, president of AT&T Wisconsin. "The same applies to other smartphone activities people are now engaging in while driving. We are urging people to please keep their eyes on the road and not on their phones."

More than 25 percent of people use Facebook while driving, according to AT&T's new research. About 1 in 7 say they're on Twitter behind the wheel. Almost 3 in 10 surf the net, and surprisingly, 1 in 10 video chat.

The events at Wisconsin high schools this school year will feature a viewing of "Fletcher's Drive" - a new AT&T documentary that shows how one young man's dreams of playing college football ended instantly when another driver hit his vehicle after glancing at their phone.

Teens will also get a chance to experience AAA's distracted driving simulator, which gives students the opportunity to experience the dangers of smartphone activities behind the wheel in a safe setting.

"AAA has long been warning the public of the dangers of distracted driving," said AAA Wisconsin Regional President Victoria Hanson. "By partnering with educators, the State Patrol and AT&T, we hope to get the message across to even more Wisconsin drivers that texting and driving is a dangerous mix."

As part of AT&T's new #Tag5toSave5 campaign, students will also be encouraged to tag their top 5 contacts in a social media post asking them to take the pledge and pass it on. New research shows 2 in 3 people have most of their smartphone communications with just 5 people, and those "top 5" have a lot of influence over each other. The campaign hopes to spread the message about the dangers of distracted driving and help save lives.

AT&T first launched the It Can Wait® campaign in 2009 to educate the public about the dangers of texting while driving and encourage consumers to take the pledge to not text and drive at www.ItCanWait.com.

The campaign has now turned into a national social movement with support from organizations all across the country, including the Wisconsin State Patrol and AAA. Since 2010, AT&T, AAA and the State Patrol have partnered together to hold events in 76 cities throughout Wisconsin, reaching nearly 31,000 high school students.

The It Can Wait campaign has also inspired over 7.3 million pledges to not text and drive. For more information on the It Can Wait® campaign, please visit: ItCanWait.com.

For more information on AAA's national initiative to ban texting and driving in every state, please visit www.TeenDriving.AAA.com.

WISCONSIN ENERGY ASSISTANCE 2013-2014

WISCONSIN'S HOME ENERGY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (WHEAP) provides assistance for heating costs, electric costs and energy crisis situations. Operating with federal and state funding, the program provides assistance to approximately 225,000 Wisconsin households annually. WHEAP assistance is a one-time payment during the heating season (October 1 - May 15). The funding pays a portion of the heating costs. IT IS NOT INTENDED TO COVER THE ENTIRE ANNUAL COSTS OF YOUR HOME HEATING. The amount of the heating assistance benefit varies depending on a variety of factors, including the household's size, income and heating costs. In most cases the heating assistance benefit is paid directly to the household energy supplier.

An Outreach Worker will be at the following:

- Wabeno Community Building, Mon., Oct. 26, 10:30 - 12:00
- Armstrong Creek Nutrition Site: Tues., Oct. 27, 10:30 - 12:00
- Crandon Community Building, Wed., Oct. 28, 10:30 - 12:00
- Alvin Town Hall, Thurs., Oct. 30, 1:30 - 3:00
- Laona Sr. Center: Tues., Nov. 2, 10:30 - 12:00

ELIGIBILITY

Your household may be eligible for WHEAP and WAP services based on a number of factors. However, if the gross income for your household is less than the amount shown on the following chart, you might be eligible to receive assistance. Applications for both programs are accepted at your local WHEAP agency.

Program services are available without regard to race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, or mental/physical handicap. Income for people who are self-employed, farmers or seasonal workers is based on federal income tax forms for the previous year.

8 Ways to Shake the Salt Habit

You're not really addicted to salt. Try these salt-reduction strategies, and within a week or two, you won't miss it at all.

1. Omit salt from recipes or automatically reduce sodium by 25 percent by measuring out the same amount of kosher or coarse salt instead - the coarse granules of these salts don't pack as tightly into a measuring spoon.
2. Take the shaker off your kitchen table or switch to light salt (50 percent less sodium) or a salt substitute, which uses a stand-in such as potassium chloride.
3. Shake an alternative seasoning. Try a spice blend, such as Mrs. Dash, or go with a squirt of lemon, some crushed garlic (NOT garlic salt) or thyme.
4. Choose canned foods with little or no added sodium.
5. Choose processed foods (such as frozen entrees) with less than 5 percent of the Daily Value for sodium in each serving.
6. Give unsalted or reduced-sodium pretzels, chips and condiments a try.
7. When buying low-fat cheese, go for a low-sodium variety.
8. Read over-the-counter drug labels (yes, they have Nutrition Facts labels too). Some items, especially antacids, can be high in sodium. Ask the pharmacist about lower-sodium options.
