Kentuck Day Festival July 27

It's time for the annual Kentuck Day Festival in downtown Crandon! The Forest County Chamber of Commerce invites everyone to attend on Saturday, July 27, for what is sure to be a fun day for the whole family. This popular summer festival celebrates the heritage of many of the area's early settlers from Kentucky. The rich history of families from Kentucky will be featured in the historical booth on the grounds of the courthouse square. With artist and crafter booths, great retailer sales, specialty food booths, live entertainment on the grounds, and a classic car show just down the street, there will be something for everyone to enjoy!

The 17th annual Kentuck Classic Car will take place on the beautiful grounds of the Weber-Hill Funeral Home from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Big storm tears up the area

By Mike Monte

Last Friday's storm inconvenienced many of our readers in Crandon, but communities just to the south were hit by high winds that did considerable damage, especially Post Lake.

On a drive through Pelican Lake and Elcho, there were spots where the wind did considerable damage with big trees, like the photo above taken in Pelican Lake. The house can be repaired, but big white pines, like the one that hit this roof, take many, many decades to replace.

There were numerous trees down in Pelican Lake, and the town hall was damaged by a large white pine that blew over along the lake shore. The blow-downs continued on into Elcho.

Elcho also had plenty of trees that caused roof damage, as did the winds. A section of the roof of the Elcho Fire Department was missing and laying across the street from the station. As we traveled east on County K, the damage increased, as can be seen in the photo of the house below plus a pickup seen under the debris.

Kentuck Klassic Car Show- Just a short walk from Kentuck Day!

WAM Fest Wabeno on August 3rd

Wabeno Art and Music Fest (also known as WAM Fest) is expanding its offerings to include a new component at this year's annual art and music festival! A Folk Art Market with free folk art workshops has been added to the Saturday, August 3 full-day event in Wabeno, Wisconsin. There will still be all day live music on the band shell, outdoor painting competitions, art for sale, "arty" activities for kids and wonderful food and drink offerings at the fifth annual event. Folk Art Market artists will also display and sell their art creations.

Hotel Crandon returns to its roots (At least a little bit)

Customers at the Hotel Crandon will see that the modern, dropped ceiling is no more. Mark Gatton and his helpers have removed the old ceiling and restored the original 1923 ambience. The decorative plaster and mounts for the original lights have returned to their former glory!

What's going on at the old trailer court?

Lots of people are seeing trees cleared and work starting at the old trailer court on Hwy 8 heading west out of Crandon. What's going on there?

Bucky Dailey purchased the land from the City of Crandon this spring to complete his first commercial build. With recent approval from the state of Wisconsin, Final Touch Construction has begun the construction phase of a high-end office space in the southwest corner of the property. The building will be called Red Barn and will showcase fine craftsmanship with timber features and a loft feel.

Red Barn offices are not based on foot-traffic, so this will not be a strip mall. However, it will be visible from the highway and we are hoping it sparks interest in bringing high-visibility, high-foot traffic business to our area. Dailey's intention for the project is to be a catalyst for future business development in the city of Crandon and for the people who call it home.

When asked what he gets out of it, there's a pause, "Well, for the last year it's been a lot of anxiety. But I'll finally have an office. It's always been on my bucket list to do a commercial building and have my own office."

Well, Bucky, that's one way to do it, and no doubt this will be a one-of-a-kind place. There is still office space available at Red Barn. For more information, call Bucky at 715-889-0738 or 715-889-9834.

29th Annual Polish Heritage Days Armstrong Creek

Armstrong Creek will be celebrating their Polish heritage this weekend. They celebrate the grit and determination of the settlers who homesteaded the cutover lands purchased from the timber companies, clearing stumps and rocks to make a prosperous and vibrant community. Most of these hardy pioneers were of Polish and other eastern European descent.

Heritage Days will be on July 26th and 27th. On Friday from 7 to 11 p.m., the New Generation Polka Band will perform.

Saturday begins with an 11 a.m. Mass at St. Stanislaus Kostka Church. A noon parade through town will follow. Park festivities will run from 1 to 11 p.m. Enjoy Polish food, kids activities, craft booths, and a car show.

Music will be performed by Chad Przybylski Polka Rhythms from 1 to 6 p.m. followed by the LiveWire Polka Band from 6 to 11 p.m.

You don't have to be Polish to join in the fun, music and lively dancing!

Wolff's River Inn, Post Lake, lost a lot of trees, but fortunately, none were laying over the building. The two cars under the trees didn't do so good.

Joan White's studio in Lakewood was decorated with a big red pine across the roof. Fortunately, it didn't appear that there was major structural damage to this unique business place.

This big shade tree was along Hwy 45, and had provided shade and beauty to the street. If it could talk, it could have told you a great deal about Elcho's history!

More storm damage photos

The Pickerel area was also hit by the storm. The photo above was taken from Lotter's station looking northeast. All of that greenery behind the building used to be red pine trees that now littered the ground, and there were trees broken off and uprooted all around the area.

Townsend and Lakewood also had plenty of wind damage, and from all reports Mountain had more. There was no electricity in the business places in Lakewood, meaning the grocery was closed and the gas stations. Fortunately, there was some electricity in Townsend, and the gas station and the Old Town Hall had plenty of customers.

Events like this remind us that Mother Nature is still in charge. It also brings neighbors out to help neighbors, and that is a good thing.

For more on storm clean up efforts and assistance, see page 6

Post Lake took the brunt of the storm, which could possibly have been a tornado. The photo above is of the road to Post Lake dam looking from County K. People were helping clear roads and driveways, but there will be cleanup to do for weeks to come.

Storms damage National Forest
Some recreation areas closed

Strong winds and rain caused significant damage to portions of the Lakewood-Laona Ranger District on the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest.

Forest Service personnel began surveying the damage this morning and will be continuing to assess recreation sites, roads, trails and the Forest in the coming days.

Currently, Bagley Rapids, Boot Lake, and Boulder Lake campgrounds are closed until further notice as well as all trails in that area. There are numerous trees down in this area causing roads to be impassable.

The Forest has issued a Road and Area Closure for National Forest System lands in Oconto County including all roads, trails, dispersed and developed recreation sites.

"As crews begin clearing areas from the storm damage they will be reopened," said Mike Brown, District Ranger on the Lakewood-Laona Ranger District of the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest. "Safety is our number one priority - we want to ensure our roads, trails and recreation sites are safe for the public before reopening them."

The additional storms and rain today may cause further damage to Forest Service roads, bridges, trails and recreation areas. Please use caution if visiting the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest and traveling on Forest Service roads, bridges and trails.

Drivers are advised to practice defensive driving techniques, reduce your speed, drive with your lights on and watch out for flooded roadways, washed-out culverts and bridges, trees on roadways and other storm debris. In addition, Forest employees are out assessing roads and will be operating heavy equipment and dump trucks as repair work and clean-up efforts get underway.

For more information on the Flood Event please visit the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest website at www.fs.usda.gov/CNNF. You may also contact the Lakewood-Laona Ranger District at 715-276-6333.

Storm recovery provided by CoVantage Credit Union

CoVantage Credit Union has announced that it will provide special Storm Recovery loans to those dealing with unplanned expenses related to recent storm damage. "Part of the CoVantage mission is to work with members experiencing financial challenge. When natural disasters occur that impact our members and their families, we want to help. We believe this Storm Recovery loan is a way CoVantage can help by providing some peace of mind during a very stressful time," said Charlie Zanayed, CoVantage President/CEO.

With this program, eligible borrowers can apply for an unsecured loan up to $25,000 to help with losses or expenses related to property damage, repairs and restoration services, replacement of personal belongings, or to assist until insurance checks arrive. The special Storm Recovery loan rate is 2.99% APR and borrowers have up to 4 years to pay it back.

Zanayed said he hopes the Storm Recovery loans will provide relief to those who need it. "The last thing someone needs when dealing with storm damage is worrying about where they will get the money to repair their home and replace possessions."

5 Essential Tips for Aging Well and Happily

There's no shortage of advice on how to age without feeling like we're getting old. Some see age as a state of mind, some cite social engagement, and still others emphasize diet and physical health as essential to keeping us young.

Essential Tips for Aging Well

After searching through dozens of aging articles and studies, we've found the top five essential tips for aging happily and staying healthy.

1. Be Socially Engaged

Maintaining active connections with our community, family and friends is critical to staying healthy, both mentally and physically. As we ourselves get older, our family relationships change and we have opportunities to mend fences — particularly with our own aging parents. In addition, aging adults are in the unique position of being able to learn a lot from older and younger friends — the former providing a sense of perspective, and the latter a sense of youth. Meanwhile, social isolation is a major predictor of depression, as well as having negative health effects: the Louisiana Healthy Aging Study reported earlier this year that more social engagement has a significant effect on physical health later in life.

2. Have a Plan for Your Later Years

On Psychology Today's website, aging expert Helen Kivnick, Ph.D., a psychologist at the University of Minnesota, points out that our ever-increasing life expectancy presents an amazing opportunity for personal growth: "Because people live longer and with greater independence, they can plan their futures more actively," she says. Of course, that means we can't just sit around waiting to get old and watching our bodies and minds deteriorate. We have to think about what we might want to do, whether it's spending more time in the garden or learning a new creative skill. "[T]he most important thing we can do to ensure a comfortable and interesting old age is to plan for one."

3. Rethink the Idea of Older Age

Several aging experts are starting to lay some of the blame for our ambivalence about getting older on the pervasive effects of ageism in our society. Learning to accept the natural changes to our bodies and minds that occur as we age is a big part of combating the problem. Whether it's the media or pharmaceutical companies, we are bombarded with messages about how we're going to start falling apart, our bodies losing vitality and our minds losing acuity, and this makes the prospect of getting older somewhat depressing; but with aging as with anything else, there is such a thing as a self-fulfilling prophecy. If we look at getting older as an opportunity — a chance to really focus on what is important to us — we can look forward to actually becoming healthier and happier with age.

4. Stay Physically Active

We've all heard the saying: use it or lose it. If you want to remain healthy and vital well into your later years, exercise is a must. Regular physical exercise will help you maintain flexibility and muscle mass, sure, but it can also keep you feeling young. It's mentally empowering to be able to continue doing many of the physical activities you did when you were younger — some people, in fact, are more fit as older adults than they were as young adults. But perhaps the most compelling evidence of all for staying active comes from a study in the Archives of Internal Medicine: those who were more physically fit in midlife were less likely to develop chronic health conditions in old age, such as Alzheimer's disease or congestive heart failure.

5. Watch Your Stress Levels

Relax! Slow down! It's advice we're all used to in our increasingly hectic daily lives, but stress is a bit more complex than that. On the one hand, debilitating stress can have negative effects on our health later in life: a study in the Journal of Gerontology found that adults who reported greater work stress in midlife were more likely to show disabilities and physical difficulties in older age. Oddly enough, though, a little stress can be good for us. "If you never have to react to anything demanding, the mechanisms in your brain that help you deal with taxing situations will atrophy," says Luigi Ferrucci, MD, PhD, scientific director of the National Institute on Aging, in an article on Oprah.com. Striking the right balance for each individual is the key.

For Old Time's Sake

The weather in Milwaukee is stifling hot. It is about 1910, and your parents have the financial resources to take a vacation to a northern lake and escape the heat of the city. After arriving in Crandon, at the C&NW depot, a horse and buggy pick your family up and you take a short ride to the shores of Lake Metonga to the resort owned by Sam and Louise Shaw. You are impressed by the beautiful Victorian style home setting in the big trees.

The family takes the path from the Shaw house to the cottage on the shore of the lake, and you can hardly wait to get in the water and cool off after the train ride. Dad is sorting through his fishing gear.

The photo above is of the home and resort headquarters built and operated by the Shaw family on the north end of Lake Metonga. The resort was eventually owned by Doctor and Bertha Decker and then the Keeler family. After the Keelers sold the property, the lovely old house was destroyed by fire.

DNR taking more steps to protect Wisconsin drinking water

MADISON, Wis. - In light of recent discoveries of contamination of drinking water and groundwater across the state, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources is initiating a new voluntary PFAS testing program.

The DNR will ask 125 municipal wastewater treatment facilities to begin sampling and analyzing water flowing in and out of the facilities for PFAS compounds to gain a better understanding of how and where PFAS contaminants could be entering the air, land, and waters of the state before ultimately ending up in public and private drinking water.

PFAS (per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances) are a group of human-made chemicals used for decades in numerous products including non-stick cookware, fast food wrappers, stain-resistant sprays, and certain types of firefighting foam that have made their way into the environment.

"No one should ever be afraid to turn on their tap. Clean drinking water is a public health priority," said DNR Secretary-designee Preston Cole. "Water is life-giving. We have an opportunity with this initiative to take a large step forward in protecting our citizens and our natural resources from harmful contaminants."

A letter is being sent Monday to the municipal wastewater treatment facilities requesting that they sample their discharges for PFAS. The included facilities were selected because they are more likely to receive wastewater from businesses that knowingly or unknowingly use PFAS.

Based on initiatives by other states such as Minnesota and Michigan, it was discovered that PFAS could enter the municipal wastewater system. These legacy contaminants can then be unintentionally transferred to farm fields through land spreading, to groundwater and our rivers and lakes through surface water discharges, and finally into our drinking water.

Data from the sampling results will be used to assist facilities to identify and implement a plan to reduce the amount of PFOA and PFOS entering their facility. The data will also be used to inform DNR on any rule making and associated economic impact analyses as part of the effort to adopt surface water standards and groundwater standards for these two PFAS compounds.

In addition to this wastewater sampling initiative, the DNR is also developing administrative rules in the fall to establish groundwater quality standards for two PFAS compounds, PFOA and PFOS. The public will be invited to provide input at several steps in the process.

Since EPA does not have a federal drinking water standard for these contaminants, like other states, Wisconsin is working to address this critical issue. The rule-making process started with the state department of health services recommending a cumulative groundwater enforcement standard of 20 nanograms per liter (ng/L) or parts per trillion (ppt) for PFOA and PFOS. The recommended standards will be enforceable once the rules are finalized.

The DHS recommendation for groundwater enforcement standards for PFOA and PFOS are comparable to current guidelines or standards in New Hampshire, New Jersey, Vermont, and Minnesota. Michigan is also developing standards that once finalized will be close to 20 ppt.

Letters to the Editor

We welcome letter to the Editor; however the letters should be legible, in good taste, not libelous and pertinent to current issues. Names will not be withheld upon request, except for very special circumstances. NAME AND PHONE NUMBER SHOULD BE INCLUDED FOR VERIFICATION PURPOSES. We reserve the right to reject any and all letters.

To the Editor:

For almost 100 years now, the League of Women Voters has been an activist, grassroots organization defending democracy. The League is proud to be nonpartisan, neither supporting nor opposing candidates or political parties at any level of government, but always working on vital issues of concern to members and the public.

Today, immigration is in the forefront of the minds of many Americans. It is also a priority for the League of Women Voters nationwide. We support immigration policies that promote the reunification of immediate families; meet the country's economic, business and employment needs; and are responsive to those facing political persecution or humanitarian crises.

We want an immigration system that ensures fair treatment under the law for all persons. In transition to a reformed system, we support provisions for unauthorized immigrants already in the country to earn legal status. We support federal laws that provide efficient, expeditious systems for immigrants to enter the United States Seeking asylum at points of entry into the US is part of our legal immigration process, and assaults on asylum seekers are unAmerican.

Nationwide, the League of Women Voters stands in solidarity with immigrants. The 116th Congress must take immediate action to pass common sense, fair immigration policies that end the crisis at our border, ends the separation of families, and provides a path to citizenship. We urge citizens of like minds to contact their Members of Congress and let their views be known.

Petra Pietrzak
 Rhinelander
 Board Member, League of Women Voters of the Northwoods

Dear Editor:

According to the National Institute on Alcohol and Alcoholism the use of alcohol by people under the age of 21 is unsafe, unhealthy, and unacceptable. This is a problem that needs to be addressed by communities across Wisconsin, now, to assure that our youth reach their full potential in life.

Alcohol is unsafe because it is a factor in the deaths of more than 4,300 youth and young adults every year in the United States. This is broken down as: 1,580 deaths from motor vehicle crashes, 1,269 homicides, 492 suicides, and 245 from alcohol poisoning, falls, burns, and drownings.

Alcohol use by this age group is unhealthy because the brain is still developing and is not complete until a person is well into their 20's. Alcohol can alter brain development. Youth and young persons who drink are more likely to have behavioral issues in school that result in poor academic performance, suspensions, and expulsions. People who start drinking before the age of 15 are more likely to have an alcohol use disorder later in life.

Alcohol use by underage people is unacceptable. A person under the age of 21 caught drinking alcohol and or buying or trying to buy alcohol may be fined up to $500.00. First time offenders also face a suspension of their driver's license. Adults may be fined up to $500.00 for failing to stop underage drinking, and they also may be fined up to $500.00 for illegally providing alcohol to people under the age of 21.

There are many ways a community can prevent underage drinking. One strategy is to address the acceptability, availability, attractiveness, and affordability of alcohol in the home and in the community. Don't make alcohol part of everyday living. Don't have alcohol available to underage people. Don't advertise alcohol products where youth and young adults can easily see it. To make it less affordable, encourage business owners to discontinue "buy one, get one free" offers and similar pricing promotions.

Our youth are our future. As a community it is up to us to try to instill good values and provide positive role models for or youth to look up to. There has never been a more important time than now to try to make changes to ensure a bright future for our youth.

For more information about underage drinking call the Forest County Health Department. For more statistics go to <https://www.niaaa.nih.gov/publications/brochures-and-fact-sheets/underage-drinking>.

Reminder!

It's your car and your choice of what body shop performs the repairs, don't let your insurance company steer you to a body shop of their choice. You pay the premiums and it's your choice on where you want to take your vehicle. Also, you only need one estimate. The small shops can get the same quality parts as the big/dealer shops and give the same quality repair if not better than the big shops.

Highly flexible Accounting, Administrative Professional programs this fall at Nicolet College

Students who want to study in the Accounting or Administrative Professional programs at Nicolet College will have significantly more flexibility in how they complete their coursework starting this Fall.

Both programs will adopt the Nicolet My Way Competency-Based Education (CBE) format that allows students to complete their work at the times and at the pace that work best for them.

"Many students juggle jobs and families and they need flexible course work if they are going to attend college," said Joel DeNamur, Nicolet Accounting instructor.

"This new Nicolet My Way CBE format provides exactly that. It combines online classes with flexible open labs where students receive one-on-one and small group instruction. In both cases, instructors are always there to help and support students so they can earn the college credential that will get them ahead in life."

Classes start September 4 and registration is now open. After that students will be able to start classes monthly, instead of only at the beginning of a semester.

While the CBE format has been around for decades in other parts of the country, Nicolet was one of the first colleges to bring it to Wisconsin when the Welding program adopted the format in January 2018. Information Technology instituted Nicolet My Way CBE that fall.

With the CBE model, students are not expected to move through the curriculum at the same pace as other students in the course. Instead, the curriculum is broken down into smaller chunks, known as competencies.

Once students have proven that they've mastered one competency, they move on to the next. When they've demonstrated proficiency with all of the required competencies, they are awarded college credits and ultimately a college degree.

"What's beneficial to students is that they progress through the competencies at their own pace," DeNamur explained. "If they have previous experience with a specific skill, they can progress through that competency fairly quickly. If they come across one that is more challenging, they can work one-on-one with the instructor until they grasp the concept and master the given skill."

Because the structure is so flexible, students who prefer the more traditional classroom approach can set up their schedules to reflect that as well, DeNamur added.

"That's the beauty of it," he explained. "Some students like the social aspect of being in a class with others, of getting to know other students and meeting a challenge together. If that's what works best for them then that's what we'll put together."

Both the Accounting and Administrative Professional programs are structured in a way where students first earn a short-term technical diploma and then use that credential as a stepping stone to a two-year associate's degree.

"Once students earn that short-term diploma, they can use that to get a job in their field of study and continue taking classes towards their associate's degree," he said. "That way they're earning money, they're getting valuable professional work experience, and they're learning more advanced skills so they can get an even better job when they graduate. It really is the perfect pathway."

More Nicolet programs are expected to adopt the CBE format in the future.

For more information about any academic program at Nicolet, including Accounting and Administrative Professional, visit nicoletcollege.edu or call the college at (715) 365-4493, 1-800-544-3039; TTY 1-800-947-3529 or 711 relay.
