Festi-Fall to feature local musicians, craft fair

Local musicians perform outside of various shops during the Festi-Fall event in Lakewood.

On September 18, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the Enchanting Shops of Lakewood (with financial support from the Lakewood Area Chamber of Commerce) will host the 9th Annual Festi-Fall in downtown Lakewood along Hwy. 32, Gage St. and Big Hill Rd. Many creative vendors set up outside the various shops to sell their hand made items such as rugs, wood signs, jewelry, ceramics, jams, local honey, mittens and much more.

It's a prime opportunity to begin your Christmas shopping. Non-profit groups are given free booth locations to sell food at the event.

What sets Festi-Fall apart from other craft fairs are the talented musicians that perform throughout the day outside the various shops. Behind Subway at Nicolet Studio & Gallery, Gage St., high energy favorites Cheri & Paul will play all your favorite hits. At Sweet Memories Candy Shoppe on Hwy. 32, you can tap your toes to the talented group Tim Can Hoopie featuring singer/songwriter Ken Dennison. Solo artist Gary Baum will once again serenade his fans with his eclectic jazz/folk/swing/pop/country style in front of Northern Perks Coffee Shop on Hwy. 32. Based out of Nashville, Milwaukee born singer/songwriter Brady Lee will wow the crowd in front of Nicolet Pharmacy/The Green Banana on Hwy. 32 with his country-pop style. Farther up Big Hill Rd., Woodland Trail Winery will host Ed Marsh, playing a John Prine tribute. Many of the musicians will also have merchandise for sale.

It's a fantastic day of great music, food, shopping and fun, so join them and support local community musicians and vendors.

Vendors sell their wares while musicians perform outside shops. Baked goods can also be found.

We have another predator making its way toward Forest County. If you appreciate your trees, now is the time to take a few minutes to check your trees for invasive Asian long-horned beetles and the damage their larvae leave behind.

Asian Long-Horned Beetle

To date, the beetle has not been detected in Wisconsin or Michigan, but has been confirmed in six states, including Illinois and Ohio. Discovering early signs of infestation can prevent widespread damage to forest resources, urban landscapes and maple syrup production.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture declared August Tree Check Month because it is the best time to spot the round, drill-like holes made by the Asian longhorned beetle.

List With Us Today!

Deer season is almost here: help slow the spread of CWD

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is asking deer hunters to join in the efforts to protect the state's deer herd, especially where chronic wasting disease (CWD) testing is most needed.

Wisconsin deer hunters play a crucial role in helping to control the spread of CWD. Each hunting season, hunters who have their deer tested for CWD, properly dispose of deer carcass waste and follow baiting and feeding regulations help the DNR monitor the disease and slow its spread.

While planning your hunt, be sure to check baiting and feeding restrictions in your county. Even where baiting and feeding are allowed, the DNR encourages hunters to reconsider using these practices to reduce the risk for disease transmission, which can spread through body fluids like feces, saliva, blood and urine. Large concentrations of animals in one area increase the risk of an infection spreading from between them.

CWD is a contagious neurological disease of deer, elk, moose and reindeer (caribou) caused by misshapen proteins that slowly degrade the central nervous system. The disease is always fatal and can have an incubation period of over a year, so infected deer can appear healthy for many months before showing clinical signs. In the clinical stage, CWD causes drastic weight loss, drooping of the head and ears, loss of coordination, excessive salivation and no fear of humans.

CWD is also referred to as "transmissible spongiform encephalopathy" or prion disease. The disease triggers normal proteins in a deer's brain to fold abnormally, causing holes to form.

By having their deer tested, hunters provide the raw data needed to understand where CWD exists or doesn't exist on the landscape. As part of an ongoing multi-year statewide sweep, the DNR especially encourages hunters in 17 counties of northeast Wisconsin to have their adult deer tested this year. In addition to the northeast part of the state, the department monitors several additional sampling areas where samples are needed. No matter where you hunt in the state, all hunters can have their deer tested for CWD.

There is a form in each hunter's Go Wild harvest history to assist hunters with getting their deer tested for CWD after registering their harvest. The form automatically fills in name, contact information, customer ID number and harvest registration number. This online form also makes it easier to find the location the deer was harvested through an interactive map that allows the hunter to tap on the harvest location rather than writing out the county, town, range and section on the paper form.

- The DNR offers four easy ways to submit a sample:
- Self-service kiosks where hunters can submit their deer's head for testing
  - A network of cooperating meat processors, taxidermists and other businesses who can assist with CWD sampling
  - By-appointment sampling with your county wildlife biologist and
  - Kits for hunters to extract lymph node tissue themselves to submit to the DNR for testing

Once hunters have finished processing their harvested deer, they can safely dispose of deer carcass waste in designated deer carcass dumpsters provided in conjunction with many partnering individuals and organizations around the state. Proper carcass disposal helps slow the spread of CWD by removing potentially infected deer carcasses from the landscape.

CWD testing, proper carcass disposal and following baiting and feeding regulations are three key ways to slow the spread. The DNR's guide to slowing the spread of CWD provides even more ways hunters can help.

While there has not been a documented case of CWD in humans, the Wisconsin Department of Health Services (DHS), the Centers for Disease Control and World Health Organization recommend against consuming meat from CWD-infected deer. Because infected deer can look healthy, DHS encourages testing for the disease regardless of your harvested deer's physical condition.

For Old Time's Sake

The bear was likely shot by Tooky's father, Jess Houle. The building in the background was, at the time, a garage run by Harold Schumacher, and later by Boyd Monte.

Death Notices

Grace Jeannette Ort, 86, passed away on September 5, 2021 at Copperleaf in Marathon, Wisconsin.

Grace was born on November 23, 1934, to Florence (Bessa) and Walter Huven, Sr. in Monico, Wisconsin. She attended Three Lakes High School and was a member of the class of 1952. She married Ralph (Dan) Ort on March 13, 1952 at Saint James Catholic Church in Monico.

Grace was a hard worker all her life. She was particularly proud of her time spent teaching Sunday school and of her work establishing the local chapter of the organization now known as The Arc, a national advocacy organization for adults and children with intellectual disabilities. Together with her son, Kirk, she owned and operated Club Monico/Ort's Bar from 1972-1982, and she worked several bookkeeping jobs in Rhinelander and Marshfield over the years. She and her husband grew and sold Christmas trees in Milwaukee, Wisconsin for over 50 years.

Grace loved knitting, baking, dancing, driving, and hosting Halloween parties for her grandchildren. She was a talented cook and a dedicated genealogist, compiling an extensive family history and maintaining correspondence with distant relatives in Germany. She took pride and joy in knitting christening gowns for her granddaughters and hundreds of afghans as wedding and baby gifts for friends and family. She was an active member of Saint Peter's Lutheran Church in Marshfield for more than 30 years.

In her golden years, Grace moved to Arizona and had the opportunity to discover her passion for traveling, venturing to the Grand Canyon, Hawaii, Niagara Falls, Chicago, and New York City. She also loved the chance to go out dancing several times a week with her sister-in-law and good friend Karen and to attend live theater with her daughter and son-in-law.

Grace is survived by her beloved dog, Tiny Toes; daughter, Lisa (Jack); sons, Mark, Kirk (Betty) and Bradley (Carrie); grandchildren, Stephane (Keith), Stacie (Erick), Chelsea (Steve), Josh (Jessie), Jason (Joanna), Bradley, Danielle, Amanda (Dan), Mariah (Aaron), and Maeve (Jordan); three step-grandchildren, Laura (Paul), Kurt, and Leslie (Tony); 14 great-grandchildren; friend and sister-in-law, Karen Horsley; and several nieces and nephews. She is preceded in death by her husband, Ralph; son, Craig; "like a son" Tim Schneider; her parents; brothers, Walter and Robert; and lifelong friend, Trink Incaid.

Special thanks to the amazing staff at Copperleaf in Marathon for their compassionate care of Grace. Through their dedicated commitment over the past 19 months, they truly became part of her family.

Services for Grace will be at Rembs Funeral Home in Marshfield, Wisconsin on Friday, September 10. Visitation begins at 10 a.m. with service at 11 a.m. Due to COVID-19, face masks are required. ## Conservation Corner Cont. from pg. 1 spot the round, drill-like holes made by the Asian longhorned beetle.

What to look for:

- Dime-sized perfectly round exit holes in trunks or branches.
- Shallow chew marks in the bark where the beetle lays its eggs.
- Material resembling wood shavings at the base of the tree or where the branches meet the trunk.
- Dead branches on otherwise leafy trees.
- Shiny black beetles, 3/4 to 1 1/2 inches in length with white spots and white striped antennae.

Asian long-horned beetle is believed to have entered North America from Asia stowed away in wood packing materials. The insect was likely accidentally introduced several times before regulations were put in place requiring the treatment of wood packing materials to eliminate hitchhiking insects and fungi. Under Wisconsin's invasive species rule NR 40 Wis. Admin. Code, ALB is classified as a prohibited species.

Asian long-horned beetle (ALB) is native to China and the Koreas. ALB populations have not been found in Wisconsin. Infestations have been found in six states (Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and South Carolina), Ontario, Canada, and several countries in Europe. Some of these infestations have been successfully eradicated by cutting and destroying thousands of suitable host trees, and eradication efforts continue at other infestations.

The preferred hosts are maples (Norway, sugar, silver and red), but the insect has also attacked birch, horse chestnut, poplar, willow, elm, ash and black locust. If Asian long-horned beetles become established in North America, there will be serious environmental and economic impacts, especially to maple forests and industries that use maple products.

ALB pose a major threat to North American forests and urban areas because they can attack trees of all species regardless in individual tree health.

Larval tunneling damages branches, and sufficient damage can cause tree mortality. ALB can easily hide in firewood, so do not move firewood long distances.

The white-spotted pine sawyer beetle is a long-horned beetle native to Wisconsin is often mistaken for ALB, but there are differences. ALB has a thick, robust body with a smooth shiny appearance and distinct white spots on black wing covers. The pine sawyer look-alike is slimmer in appearance, with a body that appears pitted or dusty and with less distinct and sometimes absent white spots. A distinct feature of the pine sawyer beetle is a white spot between its "shoulders" where the wing covers meet. Asian long-horned beetle does not have this feature.

If you see an ALB, or a tree that appears to have ALB damage, report it. If possible, capture the beetle in a jar, take photos, record the location and report it as soon as possible online at: <https://www.aphis.usda.gov/aphis/resources/pests-diseases/asian-longhorned-beetle/reportit>

National Forest bough harvesting permits available Sept. 13

Rhineland, Wis., Sept. 3, 2021—Permits for balsam bough harvesting on the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest will be available through district offices beginning Monday, Sept. 13.

Individuals interested in obtaining a bough harvesting permit should call the district office nearest their harvesting activities to confirm hours and availability before seeking a permit.

Eagle River: 715-479-2827, Glidden: 715-264-2511
Hayward: 715-634-4821, Lakewood: 715-276-6333
Laona: 715-674-4481, Medford: 715-748-4875
Park Falls: 715-762-2461, Washburn: 715-373-2667

If harvesting is for personal use, the local district office may issue a free use permit. Commercial balsam bough permits cost $80 for up to two tons of material. Additional permits cost $40 per ton. Transportation authorization tags allow for 200 pounds per tag. Permits and tags are valid for three months from the date of purchase.

It's important that permittees protect forest resources while harvesting. Permittees must use only motor vehicle-designated roads and trails as shown on the forest's motor vehicle use map, available at <https://go.usa.gov/xMcmn>. The forest also asks that permittees only harvest branches from the lower half of trees and not more than one-third of each branch to support regrowth.

Forest products permits information, including maps, is available at <https://go.usa.gov/xM3Sv>. District office staff can also answer questions, share maps of harvest areas and outline areas to avoid.

More information about the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest is available on the forest's website at <https://www.fs.usda.gov/CNNF> and through social media on Facebook and Twitter.

Protect your favorite waterfowl areas

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is asking waterfowl hunters to help prevent the spread of aquatic invasive species this fall.

Invasive species are nonnative plants, animals and diseases that cause great ecological, environmental or economic harm. Some have already been found in Wisconsin, while others pose a large risk of surviving and causing problems if they are introduced and become established here.

Just a few minutes of preventative action can help preserve and protect hunting lands for generations to come. Before launching into and leaving a waterbody, waterfowl hunters should:

- Inspect waders, boats, trailers, motors and hunting equipment, including boots, blinds and dogs
- Remove all plants, animals and mud to the best of their ability
- Drain all water from decoys, boats, motors, livewells and other hunting equipment
- Remove all seed heads and roots when using vegetation for duck blinds
- Never move plants or live animals, such as snails, away from a water body

In addition, the DNR and UW Madison Extension AIS Program often team up with the Wisconsin Waterfowl Association, Ducks Unlimited and other partners to place boot brush stations at access points near lake and river launches as well as some walk-in sites. If you are an organization interested in building and setting up your own boot brush stations, please contact DNRAISinfo@wisconsin.gov for more information.

For Old Time's Sake

Consumers want variety, and this is what the proprietor of this store must have been thinking. The name on the sign is A.S. Carterton. He opened what appears to be a variety store to compete with the Connor Lumber & Land company store a block or so from his store. Was he successful? I'm sure nobody is around Laona that would know, but his effort is an example of the free enterprise system we still enjoy in this country.
