Heavy winter rains are happening more often in Wisconsin. That's a problem. Here's why we should care.

Many southeastern Wisconsin residents woke to a downpour early last week.

More than two inches fell before 1 p.m. in Milwaukee, which broke a record last set in 1913 for rainfall in a single February day. The city's sewerage district allowed overflows of untreated wastewater into local waterways to prevent sewage backup into homes and businesses. Some roads flooded.

Heavy rainfall on top of bare, frozen ground can cause another problem, especially on farmland: It erodes soil, causing dirt and other pollutants to run off into streams and rivers. It's a particular concern in the Midwest, where researchers estimate topsoil is eroding 100 times faster than it is forming.

Here's what to know about how it happens.

How does rain cause soil erosion?

When soil warms up and thaws, rain soaks in until the ground becomes saturated. Only at that point, does it run over the ground, carrying loose soil particles with it as it heads to the nearest body of water.

When the ground is cold and hard, however, no rain can seep into it.

"When you have frozen soils, you get runoff immediately," said Dennis Today, director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Midwest Climate Hub in Ames, Iowa.

Farm fields also are more likely to be bare in the wintertime. When a few inches of rain falls during growing season, the crops can help block some of the raindrops from falling directly onto the soil, and their roots help hold soil in place.

Today stressed that it's not just torrential rain that can be damaging — even a half-inch of rain in the winter can cause problems.

Is climate change making it worse?

Anecdotally, Today said, winter rain and soil erosion seems to be happening more frequently.

A 2022 study from the University of Vermont found that the upper Midwest is particularly at risk of increased water pollution from runoff because warming winters mean more heavy rainfall on top of snow. The study looked specifically at flooding that occurred on the Mississippi River in winter and spring of 2019, finding that "rain-on-snow" events released massive amount of nutrients and sediment into the river.

Climatologists and farmers alike are noticing bigger rainfalls occurring during times of the year when

Candidate Spotlight

Anyone seeking political office is invited and encouraged to announce their candidacy in the Candidate Spotlight. It is an opportunity to tell the voters why you are running, goals if elected, etc. It is not a forum for bashing an opponent, and there is no charge.

Jason Headson Candidate for Town of Lincoln Chairman

My Name is Jason Headson and I am the current Town of Lincoln Chairman, even though I am running unopposed I thought it would be best to share the accomplishments of the last 2 years and what the next 2 hold for the township. I worked hard on grant writing and applying for grants, it's exciting to announce that the town has received more than $68,000 in the last 2 years! My plan is to continue with this model and pursue all grants for the township. I made the promise to work for the base salary and take no meeting per diems or mileage costs and I have stood to that saving the town money. I will continue to do so in the future, these funds will be used to help pay for other services that benefit all taxpayers.

I have written seasonal updates and I plan to continue with this so stay posted on Facebook and the local papers for those. I also filled in multiple days plowing this winter and I donated a weekend operating a bulldozer leveling off the pavilion area. We have widened all the roads we have room for to make more space for today's larger vehicles with our paving projects the last 2 years and this will continue. Over the next few years, I hope to pave, repair, or seal more mileage of road than we have done historically. I, as well as the other board members are committed to the Town and doing what's right for all citizens in our great community! It's been my pleasure and honor to represent you all and to continue to represent our Township.

Town Chairman of Lincoln Jason Headson

Re-elect Mark Chrisman for Laona Town Chairman

During his first term, he worked closely with the Laona Beautifying Committee to bring signs to our Main Street, a Christmas tree lighting event, Summer Rock the Block event, and several fun family events! He also worked to organize town clean-up days and keep taxes stabilized for the past two years. He led the partnership with the Forest County Potawatomi tribe to secure grant funds to better serve our youth.

Mark is an active community member. You can see him at local events to support our volunteers, Lions Club, Quarterback Club, and our school district. Mark helped to create a Laona Grant Committee that works diligently to seek grant funding for projects to enhance the Laona community. Vote to re-elect Mark on April 4th!

Is this a new strain of giant ruffed grouse

This is the first known photo of the giant ruffed grouse that has been seen east of Argonne. It is hard to determine the actual size of this genetic aberration, but it would appear to be close to ten feet tall. What caused this strain of grouse to develop is anybody's guess at this point.

This bird raises questions. Are there other grouse of this size. Will the DNR hold a special season on them if the numbers increase? Will you have to pay to be in a drawing for the giant grouse hunt? Can they be hunted with a shotgun or will it take a deer rifle to take them down? How long will a family of five be able to feed themselves on a grouse of this size? How much damage will they do to aspen stands when they feed? Will the radical enviros try to protect these birds from hunters? (It seems likely).

We will have to wait to find out. The first report will be issued on April 1st.

Welcome to the Northwoods!

The rumor is out there that there are thoughts of planting a new species in area lakes and rivers. This alligator may have a happy life in the Peshtigo River if given a fair chance. Louisiana has no problem in supplying alligators to Wisconsin. They have more than they need.

The question is will the alligator learn to go into hibernation during the winter months? Or, will he learn to make breathing holes through the ice, which could be a hazard to ice fishermen? Will the alligator make a dent in the sport fish populations in our lakes and rivers? Will he be good for the tourist industry? Will we have to keep kids away from the waters edge if they learn to thrive in the north? Will canoeing be a life risking sport?

One thing is for sure. Should we get a viable population of alligators, there will be money made selling hunting permits to those who want to make their own alligator skin luggage or shoes. All of this is exciting to our sportsmen.

Preventing sport overuse injuries

Having children in sports is a great way to keep them healthy. However, it's important to remind them to rest and recover properly to avoid an overuse injury.

An overuse injury is damage to a bone, muscle, ligament, or tendon caused by repetitive stress without allowing time for the body to heal. This can cause inflammation, muscle strain and tissue damage.

"Overuse injuries happen most commonly in joints and connective tissue. Injuries may include shoulder impingement, tennis elbow and stress fractures," says Aspirus Athletic Trainer Erin Sparks. "We typically see it in our athletics that participate in the same sport year-round or those that participate in multiple sports with similar mechanics such as volleyball and softball."

An overuse injury can start out as a slight ache that worsens over time leading to extreme pain and discomfort.

According to the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, because young athletes are still growing, they are at a greater risk for injury than adults. The consequences of overdoing a sport can include injuries that impair growth and may lead to long-term health problems.

Prevention is the best medicine when it comes to overuse injuries. Here are a few ways to avoid them.

- Get a preseason physical
- Encourage cross training and a variety of sports
- Stress the importance of warming up, proper technique and form
- Make sure they rest and recover
- Provide a healthy, well balanced diet
- Recognize injuries and get help

Overuse injuries can take weeks and sometimes months to heal completely. The sooner an overuse is suspected or diagnosed, the sooner the body can heal.

"Typically, the first thing we recommend people to do if an overuse injury is suspected is to rest and ice the affected area. Otherwise, if it's something that has been going on for a long time, seek medical attention to get a close and more specified treatment plan," says Erin.

It's important that young athlete understands that he or she should talk with a parent or coach and seek help if experiencing pain or something that just doesn't feel right. If overuse is expected don't push through the pain. Rest and recover. If symptoms persist, talk to a doctor.

"It's the little things..."

By Paul Levenson, MSPT at Health in Motion

HEALTH IN MOTION
Keeping YOU Moving!

Have you ever known you needed a change but just didn't know where to start? Or, were afraid to fail in the process of trying? Or maybe just too discouraged to begin?

Did you know your body can get like that?

Resistance to change is a common thing among us. Often, when dysfunction or pain strikes, it doesn't go away. Because of that, it becomes our new normal. We compensate for it...change our lives for it...rationalize for it...try to ignore it.

Studies have even shown our brain actually changes to accommodate this "new normal" life of pain.

Change can appear to be a big thing at first. But, really, most problems in life -- and your body -- have solutions that start with the little things -- especially if they're caught earlier than later. Wouldn't it be nice if you had someone to give you solid advice and to come alongside you for encouragement in the process? Our job is to help identify those little things that need to change that will produce big improvements and to show you ways to make those changes so your life gets better.

Let us help. That's what families do.

Baldwin Joins Effort to Review and Strengthen Medicare Advantage, Protect Taxpayers Dollars and Improve Care for Seniors

Recent federal audits show widespread overcharges and errors in payments across Medicare Advantage plans

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Senator Tammy Baldwin (D-WI) joined Senator Sherrod Brown (D-OH) and a group of Democratic colleagues in sending a letter to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), supporting CMS's efforts to thoroughly examine current Medicare Advantage (MA) practices to improve care delivery for beneficiaries. Specifically, the letter urges the Administration to engage with stakeholders to strengthen and finalize proposals related to MA to reduce excessive payments to plans and bolster the Medicare program for all seniors and other beneficiaries.

The senators raised their concerns about reported overpayments that threaten the solvency of the Medicare program and jeopardize access for Medicare beneficiaries.

"As you are aware, multiple federal audits and reports published over the last few years have identified a troubling trend of overpayments to MA plans, which are administered by private insurance companies. Federal audits made public in October 2022 revealed widespread overcharges and other errors in payments to these plans, totaling hundreds of millions of dollars in overcharges to the government in a manner that some have described as 'cross[ing] the line into fraud,'" wrote the senators.

"We recognize that not all MA plans are engaged in unscrupulous or inappropriate care management, and that the number of Americans enrolled in MA plans continues to grow each year -- approaching 50 percent of eligible beneficiaries. However, this shift in enrollment should not jeopardize the future of the Medicare program," the senators continued.

Explore Automotive, Manufacturing careers April 12 at Nicolet College

Anyone interested in learning about the training necessary for successful careers in the Automotive and Manufacturing fields is invited to attend a career exploration event from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday, April 12, at Nicolet College. "Both of these career sectors are experiencing a shortage of workers and, as such, people with these sought-after skills are in quite high demand," said Dwight Webb, Nicolet Admissions representative.

The event for Manufacturing sector jobs will be held in the Birchwoods Center and Automotive will be in the Automotive Lab located on the lower floor of the White Pine Center. Interested individuals will be able to explore the facilities and talk with instructors and employers about virtually any aspects of careers in these fields.

Nicolet's Manufacturing program offers college credentials in five different areas, which include Electromechanical, Industrial Mechanical, Welding, Metal Fabrication, and Forestry Equipment.

The college's Automotive program offers two one-year technical diplomas, which include Automotive Service Technician and Automotive Technician. The college also offers these programs in the highly-flexible Competency-Based Education, or CBE, format. Under this structure students complete a combination online instruction and hands-on lab work in a flexible open lab setting with instructors on site.

"Each program is also broken into a series of skill competencies," Webb explained. "When students complete one competency, they then move on to the next, and so on until they earn their college credential. The curriculum is the same as in the old, traditional format, and is just as challenging, only now it's in the flexible CBE format where students complete the work at times that are best for them."

For more information, contact Webb at (715) 365-4470 or at dwebb@nicoletcollege.edu. Individuals attending the event are asked to pre-register at nicoletcollege.tfaforms.net/456.

It is with a heavy heart that we write this letter. Due to Fox Valley Greenhouse abruptly closing its doors, Schaefer's IGA Greenhouse will not be opening this year. We tried to find a new supplier last minute, however Fox Valley was a very large supplier for this area and all their customers, like us, are putting a tight constraint on the available supply. It is our goal to be reopened for the 2024 spring season.

For Old Times Sake

It was a big night out in Crandon! A delicious and fancy meal was served at Woodman Hall. It was the center of activity in those days. This was likely after February of 1912, and the Opera House had burned, making the old Woodmen Hall the community center again. What year was the photo taken? It can be guessed that it is previous to the 1920's judging by the clothing and hats of the ladies in the photo. We wish we could tell you what the event was, but the photo wasn't marked. All in the photo are now gone, as is Woodmen Hall.

Baldwin, Braun lead bill to require transparency for skyrocketing drug Prices

Bipartisan FAIR Drug Pricing Act comes as median price of a new drug costs more than $222,000/year

WASHINGTON, D.C. – As more families deal with skyrocketing prescription drug prices, U.S. Senators Tammy Baldwin (D-WI) and Mike Braun (R-IN) today introduced the Fair Accountability and Innovative Research (FAIR) Drug Pricing Act, bipartisan legislation to require basic transparency for pharmaceutical corporations that increase drug prices.

From July 2021 to July 2022, the price of more than 1,200 medications increased greater than inflation—with an average increase of almost four times the inflation rate—and the median annual price of a new drug in 2022 costing more than $222,000. In January 2022 alone, drug companies increased prices on over 800 different drugs. While big drug companies took in record profits, more than one quarter of Americans struggle to pay for their prescription medications and over 15 percent of patients report either delaying a refill after running out of medications or rationing medications due to cost.

The FAIR Drug Pricing Act would require drug manufacturers to notify the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and submit a transparency and justification report 30 days before they increase the price of drugs that cost at least $100 by more than ten percent over one year or 25 percent over three years. For drugs that have a list price that is higher than median family income, or $70,784 in 2021, manufacturers will also be required to submit a transparency and justification report.

“While big pharmaceutical companies are turning record profits, too many Wisconsin families are struggling to afford the cost of prescription drugs, forcing some to ration or forgo their medication. And when drug prices are jacked up and budgets are stretched thin, there is no systematic transparency for the Americans who are forced to pay more just to access the medications they need to stay healthy,” said Senator Baldwin. “This common-sense legislation will provide basic transparency for consumers by requiring pharmaceutical companies to explain to the public why they are raising prices on working families.”

“Transparency is the key to lowering prescription drug prices,” said Senator Braun. “The FAIR Drug Pricing Act will help push Big Pharma into the right direction by requiring that drug companies notify the HHS Secretary and submit a transparency and justification report before they increase the cost of certain drugs by more than 10 percent over one year or 25 percent over three years.”

The FAIR Drug Pricing Act brings basic transparency to the market for prescription drugs that currently does not exist. For the first time, manufacturers will be required to provide information on manufacturing, research and development costs for the qualifying drug; net profits attributable to the qualifying drug; marketing and advertising spending on the qualifying drug; and other information as deemed appropriate. The bill will not prohibit manufacturers from increasing prices, but it will for the first time give taxpayers additional information on how drug prices are initially determined and give notice of price increases. HHS will make all of the information from these reports publicly available within 30 days in an understandable online format, and will submit an annual report to Congress summarizing the information submitted by drug manufacturers.

In addition to Senators Baldwin and Braun, the FAIR Drug Pricing Act is also co-sponsored by Senator Tina Smith (D-MN).

The FAIR Drug Pricing Act is supported by Marshfield Clinic Health System, Blue Shield of California, the Campaign for Sustainable Rx Pricing, the Alliance of Community Health Plans, AARP, Security Health Plan, and the National MS Society.

“This kind of price transparency is an important step toward holding drug companies accountable for pricing decisions,” said Bill Sweeney, Senior Vice President of Government Affairs, AARP. “Patients, providers, and policymakers deserve to know why the price of the drugs continue to increase - which makes it even more difficult for older Americans to afford the medications they need.”

“Senator Baldwin has been a health care champion since day one. For too long, drug companies had free rein to hike prices year after year with no transparency all while lining the pockets of their CEOs and shareholders,” said Leslie Dach, Chair of Protect Our Care. “The FAIR Drug Pricing Act fights back against Big Pharma’s greed and is an important step in helping Americans get the medications they need to thrive at a price they can afford. Senator Baldwin is once again showing the American people who’s fighting for them.”

“In 2016 I chose to stop taking my Multiple Sclerosis prescription drug because it was simply unaffordable. The drug was keeping me mobile, but the annual retail cost of $82,500 was too much for a retired couple on a fixed income. Today, seven years later, the unchanged drug retails for over $110,000,” Diane Whitcraft, MS Society Activist and retired educator from Webster, Wisconsin. “Senator Baldwin & Braun’s FAIR Drug Pricing Act will hold pharmaceutical companies accountable and responsible, not just self-serving. Extraordinarily unaffordable medications for most Americans cannot be tolerated.”

With Senator Baldwin’s bipartisan legislation, no one should have to stop taking prescription drugs because of the price tag.”

“We applaud Senators Baldwin and Braun for reintroducing this market-based solution that will help hold Big Pharma accountable and expose egregious pricing practices,” said Lauren Aronson, Executive Director of CSRxP. “The FAIR Drug Pricing Act will shine a light on the worst price-gouging offenders, help arm patients and policymakers with insight into Big Pharma’s pricing decisions and alert the public to looming price hikes.”

“Affordable access to medications is still one of the top challenges faced by people with MS,” said Bari Talente, Executive Vice President of Advocacy and Healthcare Access at the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. “While the Inflation Reduction Act was a great first step in lowering prescription drug costs, more work remains. The FAIR Drug Pricing Act is another important step to require basic transparency, justification and notice of price increases above certain threshold amounts or when companies price their medication over the median family income. With 11 MS DMTs now priced over $100,000 a year, people with MS continue to express concern with their ability to afford their medications over the next few years. We applaud Senators Baldwin and Braun for reintroducing this important legislation.”

“We commend Senators Baldwin and Braun for introducing the Fair Accountability and Innovative Research (FAIR) Drug Pricing Act,” said Sarah Kaminer Bourland, Legislative Director for Patients For Affordable Drugs Now. “This bill takes a step in the right direction by bringing much needed transparency and accountability to our broken drug price system, especially the challenge of unjustified price hikes and high launch prices. We urge Congress to move quickly to advance this legislation.”

fields are bare. Wisconsin is expected to grow warmer and wetter through the mid-21st century, and experience more extreme precipitation events, according to the Wisconsin Initiative on Climate Change Impacts.

Why is soil erosion a concern in the Midwest?

The Midwest is known for rich, fertile topsoil good for growing crops, making agriculture a star industry in the region.

But that surface layer is disappearing, worn away both by extreme weather events and farming practices that routinely disturb it. Tilling, for example, which turns the soil to prepare it for seeding, can increase the likelihood of soil erosion and runoff.

Researchers at the University of Massachusetts Amherst estimated that the rate of soil erosion in the Midwest is between 10 and 1,000 times greater than it was prior to the rise of modern agricultural practices, and that the region has lost more than 57 billion metric tons of topsoil since farmers began tilling a century and a half ago.

If it continues, all types of agriculture will suffer a drop in productivity, which will have an impact on local economies that depend on farming and on the food we see at our dinner table.

How can erosion be reduced?

Because soil erosion tends to be a bigger problem for farm fields, Today said it’s largely up to landowners to manage their land as best they can, generally striving not to leave fields bare when rain and wind could move topsoil around.

One way to do that is with cover crops, which are planted for the specific purpose of covering the soil between seasons when other crops, like corn, are grown for harvest. These crops — like alfalfa, rye, red clover and mustard — shield the ground from the elements and also root down into the soil, helping it stick together.

Another practice is no-till farming, in which farmers plant seeds directly into undisturbed soil instead of churning it before planting, locking in nutrients and strengthening the soil. A 2021 study from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign found that switching to no-till in vulnerable areas can reduce loss by more than 70%.

More farmers are employing practices like these. In the latest U.S. Census of Agriculture, released in 2017, 37% of field acres used no-till, and the use of cover crops on Midwest farms increased from about 2% in 2011 to 7% in 2021.

If a voter is not registered to vote, they may register to vote at the polling place serving their residence if the voter provides proof of residence.

Where ballots are distributed to voters, the initials of two inspectors must appear on the ballot.

Upon being permitted to vote, the voter shall enter a voting booth or go to a machine and cast their ballot. The vote should not be cast in any manner other than specified here. Sample ballots or other materials to assist the voter in marking their ballot may be taken into the booth and copied. The sample ballot shall not be shown to anyone so as to reveal how the ballot is marked.

A voter who is a parent or guardian may be accompanied by the voter's minor child or minor ward.

An election official may inform the voter of the proper manner for casting a vote but the official may not advise or indicate a particular voting choice.

Assistance for Voting

A voter may select an individual to assist in casting their vote if the voter declares to the presiding official that they are unable to read, have difficulty reading, writing or understanding English, or that due to disability are unable to cast their ballot. The selected individual rendering assistance may not be the voter's employer or an agent of that employer or an officer or agent of a labor organization which represents the voter.

Where Paper Ballots are Used

The voter shall make a mark (X) in the square next to "yes" if in favor of the question, or the voter shall make a mark (X) in the square next to "no" if opposed to the question.

A voter may spoil a touch screen ballot at the voting station before the ballot is cast.

After Marking the Ballot

After an official paper ballot is marked, it shall be folded so the inside marks do not show, but so the printed endorsements and inspectors' initials on the outside do show. The voter shall then deposit the ballot in the ballot box or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit and shall leave the polling place promptly.

After an official optical scan ballot is marked, it may be inserted in the security sleeve so the marks do not show. The voter shall then insert the ballot in the voting device and discard the sleeve or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit. If a central count system is used, the voter shall insert the ballot in the ballot box and discard the sleeve or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit.
